Voters say no new fire truck for Andover

By CHRISTY CROSS

Voters at Andover town meeting Saturday approved all but six of the 40 articles in the town meeting warrant, passing $9,500 from a proposed $454,352 municipal appropriation for 1990.

The total appropriated is up about $25,000 over last year's appropriation, or less than one mill in property taxation.

The surprise of the day came when local architectural designer and builder Dave Hawkes unveiled a drawing which proposed up to $40,000 in renovations at the town hall so it could be used as the town office.

Hawkes made his proposal under Article 23, which asked for $50,000 for renovations to the town hall.

Voters at first tabled action on Hawkes' proposal, until discussion on Article 31, which asked to spend up to $40,000 for an addition to the town office building.

They decided, finally, to approve the $50,000 for painting the town hall and to table the vote on the town office until a special town meeting. (See related story, page 3)

The remaining five articles falling at the sound of the moderator's gavel Saturday were:

• Article 28, asking for $5,000 to establish a salt shed construction fund;

• Article 30, asking for $4,500 for paving around the fire department;

• Article 32, asking for authorization to buy a new, $150,000 fire truck to be financed over five years;

• Article 35, proposing to abolish the town's practice of plowing residents' driveways; and

• Article 40, (inadvertently omitted)

First draft school budget calls for 21% increase in tax dollars from towns

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The SAD #44 administration has proposed a 1990-91 school district budget of $5,824,739, up 5.13 percent from the district's $5,540,440 budget for the current year.

However, because of a reduction in the level of state aid the district will receive next year, the amount of money to be raised through local taxes would go up 20.66 percent under the administration's proposal.

The figures, which are not final, were presented to the SAD #44 Board of Directors at its initial budget workshop last week.

The directors will meet at least twice more before signing off on their own version of the budget. That budget will then go before voters at the district's annual meeting, tentatively set for Thursday, May 3.

Like all districts in Maine, SAD #44 stands to lose some state money next year because of the revenue shortfall in Gov. John McKernan's budget projections. But SAD #44 was already scheduled to receive less money next year anyway—due to the staggering increase in the state's valuation of real estate in the district (up 48 percent in the last year alone).

Going into last week's meeting, the directors were clearly apprehensive about the effect this economic double-whammy would have on next year's budget, and on the local tax bills.

Following the administration's presentation, many seemed relieved that the proposed increase wasn't far larger.

"I certainly expected something far worse than this for a percentage increase," said Board Chairman Merton Brown.

The final increase may, in fact, turn out to be larger than the 21 percent suggested by the administration.

In order to keep the overall budget growth to 5 percent, Superintendent Duwayne Craig—in a reversal of past budget-building practice—had already eliminated many items that would normally have appeared in at least the first budget draft to reach the board.

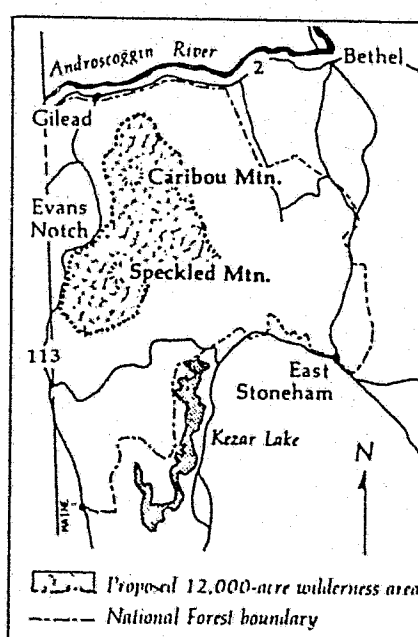

"Being off the access road [to Sunday River], we feel that we're at a disadvantage," Brogan said.

Port Sports' sign, both parties agree, is in an area of 35 square feet, in an area in which signs of 12 square feet are the maximum allowed.

Bethel's sign ordinance allows signs of up to 12 square feet in areas where the speed limit is 25 mph. Port Sports' larger sign would be allowed in an area where the speed limit is 35 mph, according to the board.

Brogan urged the board to balance the needs to the town with the needs of its businesses. "Signage is important for any business and especially important for a new business," he said. "We aren't coming to the board."

Port Sports' sign ruled too large; owners plan appeal

Port Sports lost its bid before the Bethel Planning Board last week for a modification of Bethel's sign ordinance, which would have allowed the Cross Street retail shop to keep its oversize sign.

Port Sports owner Frank Wittler and his attorney Jonathan Brogan, however, said at the meeting they would appeal the planning board ruling to the Bethel Board of Appeals.

In requesting the modification, or variance, as planning board members called it, Brogan argued three points as reasons the board ought to allow the Port Sports sign.

The points, he said, are the unique [low visibility] location of Port Sports, on the corner of Cross and Main Streets, the competing ski sales shops that have as large or larger signs, and the fact that Port Sports is a new business.

Greenwood tire recyclers meet with town planners

By CHRISTY CROSS

Peter and Susan Gordon, accompanied by their attorney, met Monday night with the Greenwood Planning Board to discuss any misunderstandings between them and the town over their Rabbit Road tire recycling facility, which has been in operation since late December.

"We would like to be able to iron things out with the town in an amicable way," said Kane Smith, the Gordons' attorney.

According to planning board member Gloria Redman, members of the Gordon family appeared before the planning board a year ago to discuss the proposed facility. And that was the last the town heard from them, until last month.

"I think there's been a tremendous breakdown in communications," Redman said. "We haven't seen these people for a year—until just last month. And yet they've gone along and done all these things. They've got all these tires up there and no one knew about it."

The town in October of 1988 passed an ordinance regulating used tire storage/disposal sites. That ordinance requires such things as establishment of an escrow fund to cover closing costs, provisions for fire safety, and hydrologic and topographic surveys.

The Gordons, however, have been operating without complying with the town's ordinance.

Attorney Smith said the Gordons are in the process of getting a license from the Department of Environmental Protection and he advised the board it is illegal for the town's ordinance to be stricter than the DEP's requirements for

Caribou-Speckled wilderness legislation before Congress

By CHRISTY CROSS

After two years on the back burner Maine's Congressional delegation has introduced legislation to create a 12,000-acre Caribou-Speckled Mountain Federal Wilderness Area in the White Mountains National Forest.

Members of the The Wilderness Society are happy.

But members of the Multiple Use Association, headed by Leon Favreau, president of Bethel Furniture Stock, are not happy.

Particularly, Favreau is not happy. An advocate of mixed use of woodlands and of scientific forest management, Favreau said Monday, "The wilderness designation is the strictest designation you can get. It's being sold by the leaders of the preservation movement [who] pass it off as being good for recreation. They pass it off as being good for the environment ... [but] it separates man from nature" by forbidding wood harvesting and by restricting recreation.

MUAs position has been well supported by the local people," Favreau said, "because they understand the forest very well. They know an over-mature forest is not good for the environment."

Favreau said the MUA started as a loose group in 1984 and incorporated in 1987, to educate the public and to supply the Congressional delegation with information. He said 300 people across the country belong to MUA.

In a statement prepared last week, the Wilderness Society wrote, "Conservationists have been working for nearly two decades to secure strong safeguards for the lands in the Caribou-Speckled area ... As federal land, the Caribou-Speckled area represents Maine's best opportunity for a national forest area to be included in the National Wilderness Preservation System."

The Wilderness Society urges enactment of this legislation as "a fitting celebration of the twentieth anniversary of Earth Day in 1980."

In a statement also released last week, the Natural Resources Council applauded Maine's Congressional delegation for introducing the legislation.

The Council led a six-year effort by conservationists to establish the Budget increases and postal name change go to Greenwood voters

By MICHAEL DANIELS

At Greenwood's annual town meeting Saturday, the town's selectmen will ask voters to approve a nine percent increase in town spending, and the selectmen are passing along a suggestion from the United States Postal Service that now would be an appropriate time to change the name of the post office in the village, from "Locke Mills" to "Greenwood."

First selectwoman Marie Bartlett said that much of the $27,107 budget increase would go to cover deficits in the town's accounts for insurance and for officers' salaries and miscellaneous.

The insurance account has been running at a deficit since 1988, she said, and the officers' salaries and miscellaneous account went into the current year with a $5,600 deficit. The reason for the deficit, she said, is that "The $30,000 we've raised for the past two years just hasn't been enough to cover it."

The selectmen are asking the town to raise $32,000 for the miscellaneous account this year, up $22,000 from last year. They are asking that $46,200 be raised for the insurance account, up $2,200 from last year.

Part of the increase in the officers' account would go toward pay hikes for town employees. Increases range from 25 cents an hour for deputy clerk and selectmen, to 30 cents an hour for highway department employees, and 80 cents an hour for the town clerk.

The selectmen are also asking for increased funding for solid waste disposal, including an allocation for joining the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corporation, and funds to buy recycling equipment and 20 dumpsters at the G & W Transfer Station.

The town now rents the dumpsters, and buying them will result in significant savings in rental and service fees, Bartlett said.

The planning board is also asking that

Newry voters approve town budget increase

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Newry's annual town meeting Monday evening was marked by more good-natured laughter than heated debate, and voters took only two hours to dispose of a 59-article warrant.

The voters elected Jim Sysko, who ran unopposed, to fill the vacancy on the Board of Selectmen left by the resignation of long-time town official Roger Hanscom.

And they went along, generally without demur, with their selectmen's recommendations for financing town affairs—including agreeing to a 43 percent increase in town taxes.

An article to raise $30,000 for solid waste disposal passed without opposition, as did articles authorizing the town to join the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corporation, to pay $1,600 toward

The drug war hay cart

Under a bill now before the legislative committee in Augusta, anyone convicted of possession of more than one ounce of marijuana or any amount of any other scheduled drug would automatically lose his or her license for one year.

The Judiciary Committee heard testimony on the bill, sponsored by Rep. Bradford E. Boutlier of Lewiston, last week.

While few people, if any, are arguing the fact that drug use and abuse is a problem in this state, the bill is another drug war hay cart ride. What does having a drivers license have to do with possession of drugs?

Since the vast majority of adults in Maine have licenses and since most of Maine is rural and has little in the way of public transportation, maybe Boutlier is reasoning that shelving a person's license for a year is a deterrent.

But maybe taking away a person's VCR would serve the same purpose. And make about as much sense.

What is the rationale here? Or is there any? Is Boutlier, along with a lot of other politicians, just jumping on the drug war hay cart by grasping at straws? After all, it gets his name in the paper. It attaches him to the popular front. And it diverts attention from the real problem.

Drug abuse is never going to be legislated out of this state or out of this country. The drug problem is not a legal problem, though making laws to punish drug possession and usage seems to make it a legal problem.

The drug problem is a societal problem, pure and simple. Is exists because our society—that's you, me, our next door neighbor—fosters drug use and abuse.

The real drug problem has nothing to do with laws, with suspending a driver's license. It is about a quick fix, about fast-food mores, about how we value ourselves and others.

More laws, especially laws as irrational as suspending licenses, are not what we need.

What we need is to set fire to the hay cart and focus our time, energy, money and newspaper space on something more substantial—like identifying and solving the problems of which drug use and abuse are only a symptom.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

As a selectman of Greenwood, I would like to congratulate Patrick Harrington on attaining the rank of Eagle Scout, B.S.A. This important milestone is an accomplishment which has traditionally benefited the recipient throughout his life. In addition to building skills and character, being an Eagle Scout has opened the doors of colleges, created job opportunities, and accelerated career advancement.

One of the best investments in our future is with our youth and the dividends can be great when the youth, as an adult, reinvests himself in the community.

Once again, my congratulations to Patrick and may he continue along the Sen. Mitchell says...

Over the last 40 years, various federal agencies have carried out their respective missions, often with little regard to the environment.

Improper use, storage and disposal of fuels, oils, solvents, paints, acids, heavy metals and other hazardous chemicals at thousands of federal facilities constitute some of the nation's most serious hazardous waste compliance problems, some of which pose significant health threats to people living and working nearby.

In Maine, waste sites at Loring Air Force Base in Limestone, the Brunswick Naval Air Station and the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in Kittery have raised concerns among state, local and federal environmental officials.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) lists 1,288 federal facilities around the country as candidates for further environmental review of its Federal Agency Hazardous Waste Compliance Docket. Each of these facilities may contain a number of waste sites.

The Department of Defense and the Department of Energy account for the majority of federal facilities with environmental violations.

The Defense Department lists more than 8,000 sites at nearly 900 military installations which need some degree of environmental clean up.

The Department of Energy lists some 3,700 sites at 17 facilities with environmental problems. A recent report by the National Governors' Association and the National Association of Attorneys General listed several problems with compliance at federal facilities.

Under federal environmental laws, federal agencies are directed to comply with federal and state environmental laws to the same extent as private facilities, but many have failed to do so.

Many federal agencies have engaged in improper disposal practices, including dumping in unlined pits and landfills and using sewer drains for disposal.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is aware of numerous violations, but its enforcement powers have been hindered by a Department of Justice policy prohibiting EPA from filing lawsuits or issuing enforceable orders against other federal agencies.

States, too, have had difficulty enforcing their environmental statutes on federal sites.

The Portsmouth Naval Shipyard has for years been the subject of litigation brought by Maine's Attorney General over the right of Maine to impose fees and penalties for environmental violations at the facility.

While federal courts in Maine and Ohio have decided that Congress intended and stated clearly that federal facilities are subject to the same enforcement sanctions as private entities, other courts have ruled differently.

Last year, I introduced legislation to clarify current law to ensure that federally-owned hazardous waste facilities are subject to the same enforcement sanctions that apply to state and local governments and private companies.

The bill, which is known as the Federal Facilities Compliance Act, also requires federal facilities handling hazardous waste to conduct assessments to determine if such facilities are in compliance with federal environmental statutes.

In addition, the EPA would be required to conduct annual inspections of such facilities.

In Congress we establish national environmental policy. Surely one of the goals of that policy is to assure that facilities owned by the federal government avoid contamination of the environment.

OVERSIZED SIGN—Port Sports lost its bid to the Bethel Planning Board last week for a modification, or variance, to allow the sign pictured above to remain on Cross Street.

Board Chairman Reggie Brown asked, "Can you tell me why you went and had a sign made that big?"

Witter said after he ordered his sign, the signmakers called and said adding a couple of feet to the sign on each end would make it work better. Without really thinking, he said, he okayed the increase.

Board member Don Feeney said, "We have an American free enterprise system of business. They have a poor location. Now they're asking us to help them level the playing field."

The board voted unanimously to deny the request for a modification, or variance.

In other business before the planning board last Wednesday the board issued an advisory opinion to Norm Putnam, who wants to close off one door, move a door and put a kitchen in the present dining room of his in-town house to create another apartment.

Considering Putnam's living quarters and the existing apartment, the new apartment would bring the total to three living units in the house.

"I intend to restrict [tenants] to two cars per apartment," Putnam said. "I do have parking space for seven cars."

Chairman Brown said he thought the third unit might bring Putnam under the requirements of section 3-B of the site plan review ordinance. However, Putnam said the second apartment was in the house when he bought it in 1980.

The board members agreed to contact the Maine Municipal Association for an opinion, and voted to okay Putnam's plan if, in the opinion of MMA, it doesn't fall under the definition of a subdivision.

Finally, the board found that a proposed gift shop at the Holiday House would constitute a change of use and need a site plan review and board approval.

The planning board is also asking voters to approve a preliminary version of a comprehensive plan for the town, and to raise the fee for subdivision and trailer-park permits from the current $20 per lot to $50 per lot.

The board is also asking that the fee for anyone applying for a permit already starting or completing a project be changed to include a penalty of from $50 to $1,000, at the discretion of the board.

The major non-financial article on this year's warrant is the proposal to change the name of the town post office. The suggestion came from Post Office officials, Bartlett said, who noted that the routes served from the post office will soon be expanded to include areas outside of Locke Mills Village, but still inside the town of Greenwood.

The town's zip code would not be affected by the proposed change, he said.

Selectman Bartlett and SAD #4 Director Raymond Harrington are up for reelection. They and other town incumbents will be running for reelection. The town meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in the town hall.

SCHOOL BUDGET

Gone already are new elementary teaching positions, the FOCUS program, the Quad gifted and talented program, summer school, an alternative education program, and mandatory oil-tank replacements. A long list of other services, equipment, supplies and maintenance activities has also been cut back.

According to Supt. Craig, these cuts reduce by more than half a billion dollars the amount of money that will have to be raised from local taxpayers.

The board, of course, may choose to put any or all of the eliminated items back into the budget, and Chairman Brown acknowledged that there will be considerable pressure from some quarters to do so.

"I know there are projects that people will want back in," he said.

In fact, more than a dozen parents turned out for the budget workshop to do just that. Nearly all argued strongly for keeping the four-year-old FOCUS program, which provides more challenging activities for gifted and talented pupils in the district elementary schools.

Supt. Craig estimated it would cost $83,000 to keep the FOCUS program in place next year.

The board instructed him to prepare a list of this and other items already cut from the budget draft, along with a summary of how much money each cut saved.

The list will be reviewed at the second budget session, set for 8 p.m., this evening (Wednesday) at the Telstar library.

The board also asked for a list of items the administration would like to see put back into the budget, and for a breakdown of student-teacher ratios at the various levels in the district.

Even at the 21 percent level, the increase in local assessment would be the largest since the 52 percent increase proposed for the district's 1987 budget.

That increase led to a tax revolt, with voters finally forcing the district to cut its proposed budget by $400,000. Since that time, resistance to school budgets has never flared beyond the muttering stage, but the directors are still wary of the taxpayers' flash point.

Rev. Brandon Bass, who attended the workshop, asked why the directors felt obliged to cut from the budget items that they would otherwise wanted to include.

"What are we afraid of?" he asked. "That [the budget] will just get nixed by that gang that met in the gymnasium a few years ago?"

Outgoing Director John Foster, of Andover, replied that this was a legitimate factor in the board's deliberations. "I'm afraid that if we asked for 30 percent, it would [be rejected]," he said.

Chairman Brown complained that the board was being forced to solve the town's deficit problem by passing it along to the taxpayers. "The governor can talk about us not having a crisis situation," he said, "but I don't know what else it is—things are going to have to be cut."

According to the Gordons, tires are brought into the facility and graded, to the facility.

Specifically, he said, the DEP exempts facilities less than 10,000 square feet in size from its licensing requirements. The Gordons' facility, which is under 10,000 square feet, is in compliance with DEP regulations, he said.

"Are you saying that because the state has the 10,000 square foot exemption, we should have it, too," asked Greenwood Selectman Roy Seames, who also attended the planning board meeting.

"Yes," said Smith, again stressing the illegality of a town ordinance stricter than the DEP's requirements regarding tire recycling facilities.

"We've got two questions here: Is there a conflict between the state and the local laws and what can the Gordons comply with and what can't they comply with?" Smith said that, as the Gordons are operating their business, they are working to meet DEP licensing requirements to allow them to expand beyond the 10,000 square foot limit.

Jerry Bley, NRC resource specialist, said, "Caribou-Speckled could become the first protected wilderness in the southern half of the state. At a time when our environment is changing so rapidly, it's critically important that we set aside a few key areas to be preserved in their natural state."

According to the NRC, wilderness designation of an area prohibits construction of roads and buildings, commercial timber harvesting, and the use of motorized vehicles.

"Roads, clearcuts, and recreational development could destroy the unique wild character of the Caribou-Speckled Mountain area," Bley said. "The only way to ensure the preservation of the area's traditional uses and its valued natural resources is through wilderness designation."

Favreau, however, argues that just across Maine's border in New Hampshire, 20 miles from Caribou and Speckled Mountains, is a 102,000-acre federal designated wilderness area.

"The real push for this," he said, "is to be able to say that Maine has a federally designated wilderness area... It's an elitist position."

Further, he said, because evidence of man, such as roads and buildings, are visible from the mountains, "The wilderness zealot is not going to like what he sees up there."

Favreau said that, as a national forest, the last time the Caribou-Speckled area was harvested was in the 1960s. He said the government puts maturing areas of national forests out to bid by local contractors, with stringent harvesting stipulations.

"The intent was to harvest an area that was maturing around 1980," he said. "However, we had a bad windstorm and all the available contractors were put in to salvaging (blowdowns). Shortly after that the Wilderness Society discovered New England."

The Congressional delegation held a public hearing in Bethel in November of 1987, to take comments on its interest in proposing Caribou-Speckled Mountains for wilderness designation. The delegation took no further action, according to the NRC, until February 1990, when it introduced the legislation.

Favreau said he thinks passage of the legislation is almost a sure thing. He said there will be a public hearing prior to passage, "maybe up here, but at least down here [in Washington D.C.]"

"The MUA will go to Washington," he said.

be sold for recycling, resale or recapping.

The Gordons estimate that 15,000 to 18,000 are stored at the facility now.

Of particular concern to members of the board and to Seames, who is also a member of the fire department, are provisions for fire safety.

"I don't understand how you can be in compliance [with the DEP] without talking with the Greenwood Fire Department," said Planning Board Chairman Selectman Roy Seames, who also attended the Bethel Fire Department saying you're all right. But I don't think Bethel has a right to tell you what you can do and what you can't do [in Greenwood].

Bethel will respond first because they're closer, but that's a question for the Greenwood fire chief to answer. If Bethel is going to make all the arrangements for the fire protection out there, then they've got to send Greenwood a letter saying they will take full responsibility for what happens out there."

Susan Gordon said the reason she wrote to the Bethel Fire Department for approval was because Bethel, due to its proximity to the site, would be the first to respond.

Planning board members agreed that the Greenwood fire chief ought to visit the site to make recommendations regarding fire safety.

And the Gordons agreed to provide the planning board with a letter from the DEP stating that they are in compliance with DEP regulations and to provide the board with copies of correspondence they send to the DEP, as well as copies of correspondence the Gordons have with insurance companies in their effort to obtain insurance coverage at the facility.

Now my top is being torn off. The soda that I've kept so well is being guzzled down. I'm crying and feel rejected when I'm thrown into a garbage bag with other silent cans.

A few days later...

I've just been thrown into the back of the truck with all the other cans. They tell me we are going to the Spanish/American Youth Exchange Bottle Drive.

On no, I thought. What's going to happen? Now I'm being picked up and thrown into a bag with other cans of my kind. I hear the number 45 being yelled. All I am is another nickel added to the pile.

The more experienced cans tell me that we are going to a recycling center, but not to worry because it doesn't hurt. I'm scared what's going to happen to me. Soon enough I'm to find out.

First I'm sorted out again and thrown into a big heater. Ouch, I'm starting to melt. Oh, I'm almost gone. Bye-bye, world.

Now I must find out what's sort of a "recycling" feeling I'm being poured into a mold. What's happening? I don't understand. What's going on? I'm being turned into another person. I'm the second now. Yeah, back to the can with a new pack of friends.

West Paris voters reject building ordinance, 61-47

Members of the West Paris Citizen's Planning Committee tried to persuade voters at Tuesday night's annual town meeting to vote in favor of the proposed Building Notification Ordinance but their efforts proved unsuccessful.

The voters defeated the proposed ordinance 61 to 47.

If approved, the ordinance would have required property owners in the town to notify the town office before building or adding onto a building in excess of 100 square feet or before making structural changes to an existing building or doing renovations resulting in an estimated increase in value of $2,500.

Citizen's Committee members said the ordinance would help people know what is required under state and local ordinances before they start work.

Planning board chairman David Walton said, "All we need is a way we can guarantee people understand the ordinances of the town. It's that simple."

Also, Walton said, "What happens if somebody builds a house that doesn't comply with those ordinances. It's going to be big bucks to tear it down."

Several voters questioned the need for the ordinance since it only covers ordinances and building requirements that are already in effect.

"I'm of the understanding that we have to comply with all of those anyway," one woman said.

The selectmen said the ordinance would also help them to be aware of taxable properties which otherwise might not be noticed.

Voters also defeated a proposal to purchase a backhoe under a lease/purchase agreement for $500 per month.

Read Commissioner Bob Coffin said, "It costs us roughly $8,000 a year [to rent] a backhoe for three or four weeks. For that I think the town might as well own a backhoe."

Selectman Hugo Heikkinen called the lease/purchase proposal "kind of a back door way of getting the same thing we voted down two years ago."

Neither the selectmen nor the budget committee recommended the lease/purchase of the backhoe.

In a move that apparently surprised some people, voters amended an article to approve $19,882 for 17 social service groups appealing to the town for funds.

The selectmen had recommended funding the groups at 1989 funding levels.

The woman who made the amendment said, "This is going to be a hard year for all these groups, given the state and federal budgets. I move we amend the article so all these groups get what they are asking for."

Selectman Howard Gurney said, "I'd like to mention we're all going to be having a hard time this year." He noted a possible increase in school funding, for example, maybe as much as $40,000.

Still, voters approved the social services article at $24,884.

At the onset of the meeting, voters re-elected Dian Stinson as town clerk and Howard Gurney as selectman. They also re-elected Bob Coffin as post commissioner over challenger Garrold Hammond, and re-elected Robert Stinson as school director.

The meeting continued past the Citizen's 10:45 p.m. press deadline.

Carla the Coke Can

By JAMIE LEWIS

(Recycling will be a necessity for the 1990's. West Bethel's Jamie Lewis, eighth grader at Telstar Middle School, tells a tale about the life of one Coke can. This story might remind us to recycle.)

I'm so bored sitting here on the shelf in a crowded six-pack. There's no one to talk to. Why can't somebody buy me?

What's this? Someone's coming toward me! Sit up straight, Carla, and don't let them be any duds. She's picking me up! Just me, not my other five friends. Ouch!

She just threw me into the shopping cart. Maybe being bought isn't so fun after all. Ugh! I can't breathe. A cereal box is on top of me.

There, I've found a hole next to a nice smelling bottle of shampoo. Oooh, that tickled being run across the scanner. Well, at least I am at the top of the shopping bag.

FIRE TRUCK

from the town report) asking to fix a drainage problem near the Andover Post Office.

Selectman Fred Emerson recommended voters defeat Article 28, to establish a salt shed construction fund.

Emerson, who noted that the shed will be required by the state, said, "I think this is a thing you could fight and win."

The theory of the $70,000 to $100,000 shed, he said, is to keep salt from leaching into the ground under and around a town's winter sand/salt pile.

He said Andover's sand/salt pile is located in a flood plain, and isn't in danger of contaminating any well. He said he couldn't buy the rationale that the sand/salt mixture needed to be covered only until it is spread on the roads.

"I can't see housing something from the rain then dumping it in the rain," he said.

Noting that the administration in Augusta will change twice before Andover is required to have the shed built, he said, "Hopefully, an anti-freezing agent that's non-toxic will come along before we have to do it."

Article 30, to pave around the fire station, went down in a counted show of hands, 45-25.

Joe Myhrall said, "I believe at one time money was raised to do that."

Fire Chief Ken Dixon said, "Yes, there was some money raised but there was only enough to do the apron."

Townpeople voted by secret ballot on whether to spend up to $150,000 on a new fire truck, defeating the article 73 to 31.

Before the vote, Dixon said, "What we thought would be up to $150,000 truck is today $180,000 to $185,000. We'll have to redesign [the bid specifications] to get it down to $150,000."

While many people at the meeting expressed nothing but the highest regard and appreciation for the fire department, they said the truck was too big an expenditure for firefighting for a town the size of Andover.

Regarding Article 35, to discontinue plowing private driveways, resident Betsey Fisher asked, "How much are our taxes going down if they don't plow the driveways?"

Selectman Emerson said, "I don't know." But, he said, "There has been legal action in other towns that have said 'public funds [can't be spent] for private use.'"

He said according to the town's insurance agent, the town would not be covered in a lawsuit from plowing private driveways. "My major concern is, down the long run, that someone doesn't end up owning half the town," Emerson said.

One voter said, "It's one of the few things you see from your tax money. Especially the older people. They can't jump out and shovel their driveways."

Selectman Jane Rich said, "This is about the fourth time this has come up. I wonder if you realize what a pain in the butt it is for Wilbur [Cheney, road commissioner] and for the selectmen who get the complaints. Given that it's illegal, why do we continue it?"

Finally, on Article 40, townspeople voted 30 to 22 against fixing a drainage problem near the Post Office building.

Joe Myhrall, who built and owns the building and who has asked the town to fix the problem, said the complaint is standing water in the area.

"This is not private property. It's a two road wide road. The problem runs onto private property but it doesn't originate on private property."

Resident and town treasurer Alex LeGault said, "As I understand it, there was good drainage there. The root cause of the problem was the new construction 10 or 15 years ago."

Selectman Emerson said a catch basin installed at the site would cost an estimated $2,700 and may only be a temporary solution.

Selectman Rich said, "I think what we're afraid of getting into here is a 'pig in a poke' sort of thing, because we really don't know what we're talking about."

Among the articles approved by voters was a request for $52,000 for General Municipal Expenses. But not without voters first grilling the selectmen about why the account has doubled in the last two years.

Selectman Rich said the account covers general operating expenses, including the administrative assistant's salary, the tax collector's and selectmen's salaries, and legal and auditing fees.

Treasurer LeGault said the legal fees, $6,644 last year, could be expected to rise to $12,000 to $15,000 this year. Selectman "dream come true," Stine said recently from her American home with the Harrison family—Randall, Nancy, Heather and Hillary—in Mt. Abram Village in Locke Mills.

Stine worked very hard, mostly in a cafeteria back home, to help her parents pay for this dream of hers. She comes from a middle class family, her father, Gunther, works for the utility company and her mother, Irma, is a secretary for a school for the deaf. She also has a 20 year old brother, Lfrs, who has recently been inducted into the Danish Military.

Stine has fulfilled "ninety-year departure" in her Danish education, and will attend three years of "gymnasium" (similar to our college prep) when she returns to Denmark this summer. She will be credited for most of her classes here in America.

Stine arrived here on Aug. 19. (It was the first time she ever flew in an airplane). She has struggled through American History, and the vocabulary study in English. Her favorite class is art.

Stine's favorite thing to do is sports. She was very disappointed that there was not a girls' soccer team. Although she was encouraged to try the ever-popular New England sport of field hockey, she pursued soccer as the only girl on the varsity soccer team.

Her persistence and determination earned her a varsity letter and a plaque for "1989 MVC (Mountain Valley Conference) Soccer All-Star Second Team."

At the awards ceremony, Coach Remington announced that they had videotaped Stine to use in future training, showing her "unique way of playing the ball, even when she didn't have it."

Though Stine had not skied a lot in her life, only during family vacations in France, she has worked very hard to be an asset to the Telstar ski team. She even managed to qualify for the State meet, which she just went to with the school team last week in Fort Kent.

Stine is a very ambitious 16-year old. Besides her soccer and skiing accomplishments, she is very talented in art, dance, and her new found game of racquetball. She plays racquetball in the Women's C league at the Hillside Racquetball Club in South Paris, once a week, and takes jazz and tap dance lessons from Miss Sue at the Children's Dance Theater in Bethel. She will play one of the lead roles in the June dance production.

Stine experiences her American dream to it's fullest, each day. She says she wanted to come to America to prove to herself that she could do it, and to better study and understand the English language.

Her American family and friends say that Stine's positive personality and ability to learn and make their ordinary routine days special ones. She's always fun to be with, easy to please, and has a heart of gold.

These were obviously the traits responsible for acquiring the popularity that won her the title of Telstar's Winter Carnival Queen.

Stine was a great hostess, bedeviled upon this "Danish Queen" of Telstar's students' hearts, and she wants them all to know they will always have a special place in her heart, too. "It will be just as hard to leave my American family and friends, as it was to leave my home in Denmark," Stine said. "Thank you, with all my heart."

Valley View Drive, in Barker Mountain Village, as a town road. The selectmen wanted the newly paved road to overlay a full winter so that any possible construction problems would be apparent.

The meeting, moderated by Les Otten, moved briskly through the agenda, stalling only over a seemingly routine article authorizing the selectmen to take $10,000 from the Tree Growth Account and apply it toward appropriations.

There was $15,044.27 in the account at the end of the past year, Bob Moxey noted, and he motioned for an amendment authorizing the full amount to be taken out and put toward appropriations (thus reducing the town's tax rate).

Others countered that some money should be left in this undesignated account to serve as a cushion against unexpected expenses.

Nonetheless, Moxey's amendment was accepted—and nearly 45 minutes of further debate and voting commenced.

"Oh, I don't care... just do what you want," Town Clerk June Swan said in exasperation at one point.

An eventual hand vote on the amendment was too close to call, and Otten called for a written ballot. Fifty-nine voters responded, but three folded their ballots and the balance were evenly divided pro and con.

Otten called for a third vote, and the motion was defeated 30-29.

This result, however, meant the selectmen could not transfer any money from the account—and tax bills would have to go up.

It was hurriedly agreed that another vote was a good idea, so the article was re-moved back to the original $10,000.

First time home-buyers program gets fund boost

The MSHA has added $25 million to its first time home-buyer program and extended the current program into the spring. It offers moderate income first-time home buyers mortgage loans at an interest rate of 8.25 percent. A special HOME Start segment of the program offers mortgage loans at an interest rate of seven percent for first time homebuyers with annual incomes of $22,000 or less.

The MSHA interest rate is approximately one and a half to three points above the current prime rate.

Carly said the additional $25 million will extend the current program into the spring. It offers moderate income first-time home buyers mortgage loans at an interest rate of 8.25 percent. SURPRISE PLANS—David Hawkes, assisted by his son Sean, holds up his proposed plans for renovations to the Andover Town Hall. Hawkes asked voters to consider using the town hall to house the town office, rather than build a $40,000 addition to the existing town office.

Figure.

This time voters overwhelmingly approved it.

All incumbent town officers were re-elected without opposition Monday, except for school director Marjorie Osgood, who did not seek reelection. Voters elected Audrey Brooke to fill her spot on the SAD #44 board.

Below rates charged by most conventional lenders. This saves borrowers about $60 to $100 a month on a $60,000 mortgage, compared with conventional rates.

The reduced interest rates, along with other program features such as a fixed rate mortgage and long repayment term, reduced downpayment requirements, and closing cost assistance, make it easier for Maine families to afford their first home.

The reduction in home price limits reflects lower home prices as measured by the U.S. Treasury Department survey of home costs. The survey is done every 12 to 18 months.

The new price limits do not change the maximum price of eligible new homes, or the $88,000 maximum price of existing homes purchased through the HOME Start portion of the program. Also not affected is the maximum cost of eligible existing homes in Lincoln and Sagadahoc counties, and metropolitan Androscoggin County, which remain at $84,000 and existing home prices in York and Cumberland Counties, which remain at $100,000.

The new federal limits, however, reduce the maximum price of existing homes that may be purchased under the regular MSHA program from $94,000 to $73,400 in Aroostook, Franklin, Hancock, Kennebec, Knox, Oxford, Penobscot, Piscataquis, Somerset, Waldo, and Washington counties, and the non-metropolitan areas of Androscoggin County.

Andover town office plans need special town meeting

Dave Hawkes surprised everyone, including selectmen, at town meeting here Saturday when he stood before voters and unveiled a detailed drawing for renovations to the town hall, proposing to use it as the town office.

While many of the voters at the meeting expressed interest in Hawkes' proposal, questions arose about the legality of voting on it at the town meeting without prior notification.

"I know you didn't get a lot of notice of this [because] I kept it on the Q.T.," Hawkes, who is an architectural designer and builder, said. "I have been working for quite some time on designs for renovation of the town hall as the town office."

"My main argument is, I'd like to see this building used. A building that is lived in is a building that is maintained."

"We've lost a lot of historical preserves in this town. This is a way to preserve this building."

Selectman Fred Emerson said, "We're all sitting up here kind of horse-faced, because when we initiated this addition to the town office [as proposed in Article 31 of the warrant] we looked at the town hall," but determined it wasn't feasible.

"This is the first time the selectmen have seen or heard of this plan," Emerson said. He explained that the selectmen had earlier contracted with Hawkes to come up with a plan for using the town hall as the town office. Hawkes came up with two plans, Emerson said, but there wasn't enough space.

"It was my idea originally to move the town office back to the town hall," Emerson said. "From all the information we could gather, as aesthetically nice as it would be, it doesn't seem it would work. We need a secure, practical town office. (The present town office) is not the most pleasant or the prettiest, but it is practical," Emerson said.

After looking at the plan Hawkes presented Saturday, Emerson told the voters, "If we had seen this plan [earlier], you probably would have been looking at it today with the recommendation of both the selectmen and the budget committee."

Hawkes said that he had been stonewalled in his attempts to bring this second plan before the selectmen.

As proposed by Hawkes, the plan includes an office for the town clerk, a community bulletin board in the hall, a spare room to the right of the front entrance and access for the handicapped via a side door.

Andover Treasurer Alex LeGault said, with a laugh, "The only problem with the plan is, where is the bathroom?"

Looking at his drawing, Hawkes said, "I can see your concern. In fact, I have a concern sitting on those toilets that are here right now." The voters laughed.

However, Hawkes said, "If the town office is here we'll do something about those bathrooms, won't we?"

Initially, the voters tabled Article 23, which asked for $8,000 to paint the town hall, and moved the article and Hawkes' proposal to be taken up with Article 31. Article 31 asked for approval to spend up to $40,000 to build an addition onto the town office, because more space is needed for records and to perform office duties, according to selectmen.

Former selectman and attorney Charles Cutting, however, cautioned the townspeople against voting on Hawkes' proposal without proper public notification.

"I feel that we should properly take care of this at a special town meeting, after people have been notified," Cutting said.

Voters approved Article 23, to appropriate $6,000 to paint the town hall and agreed to table Article 31 until a special town meeting. The selectmen agreed to hold the special town meeting prior to the end of June, when the municipal tax commitment is set for 1990.

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Neighbor:
They found John's body in his bed the other day. "They" are the rescue team that Donald used to direct; John was the "boy next door" when we lived in our other life.

When I heard the report, I didn't react at first. There were lots of old feelings to call up, lots of old pain to bring to the surface before I could respond to the news.

You see, John was the neighborhood "druggie" who was also the neighborhood "pusher." He was the very refined son of the very refined people in the very refined white house. But he turned to drugs at an early age, and he later sold them to support his habit.

John was the adolescent who rebelled against the "very refinement" for whatever reason, and sought his solace in another dimension. He presented a real dilemma to his parents whose immediate problem, or so they thought, was that their firstborn was refusing to "dress for dinner." Little did they know...

And now I'm reacting! I'm remembering the times that I saw the strange cars in the driveway next door, the engines idling while the occupants made very quick trips inside. I'm remembering the times that we asked our sons to stay away from John, because we feared the worst and didn't know how else to deal with the problem. I'm remembering the times that I saw one of our boys sneaking across the back of John's yard into the back of ours, and how I was so willing to accept whatever excuse was offered for the trespass... DENIAL comes easy.

Denial can also be deadly. We want to believe that life is safe and that our children are safe. So when we see signs of DIS-EASE, we tell ourselves that our imaginations are working overtime. We close our eyes to truths that hurt, or we shut them out in hopes that they will go away. We latch onto the slightest positive notes, always ready to convince ourselves that all is well once more.

And then one day, we wake to find ourselves in the throes of a "daymare" just another "little scrape" becomes the last straw that we can not fix. Our child who showed such promise and talent is slipping out of control and we are helpless. He endangers his life and the lives of those around him. He holds himself in low esteem and he cares little for his life continues. If we're lucky, he "hits bottom" before he has a chance to throw himself from the roof of a tall building or swallow a bottle of death.

Do we have a choice in this matter? A few years ago, when our son was majoring in self-destruction, we thought not. But now, people are looking at the dilemma that ensnares our youth and they're saying, "we must interfere! We must do something! We can't just sit here and watch our children become casualties of the drug war!"

Enter Janine Buck, Brian Stowell and a program called D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education). Janine, a persistent parent, prevailed upon Brian, a perceptive police chief, to implement the program in Bethel. The program is in the planning stage; funds must be raised, strategies outlined. The target population will be fifth and sixth graders of S.A.D #4, and the lessons in how to have a better life should begin, (if the group can raise the $8,000 or so that will be needed for one year's operation) in September.

Meanwhile, in West Bethel, the Pleasant Valley Grange members recently voted to hold an in-house auction at their March meeting, the proceeds to be donated to Project D.A.R.E.

It's a beginning... but can we do more? Do we have an obligation to the little children of today who could be the desperate druggies of tomorrow? I think we do. I think that we can make a difference. We can raise funds for the education of the innocent as a force within the village. When the call comes from the DARE committee, we can bide

Recently Althea Hathaway, Kathleen McAllister, Margaret Sicotte, Irena, and Helen Rasky and Olga Darchuk, Berlin, N.H., all attended the stage show with Debbie Reynolds. "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," at Boston. It was a very enjoyable performance.

The Historical Society has much information on famous Woodstock citizens and local landmarks. It has a nice book on the latter for sale. The Historical Society depicts life in Woodstock as it was 100 years ago. Come to a meeting soon. Next one is March 10th. A recent gift to the museum was from Ernie Lorenzen of the Oxford Hills area.

The Woodstock Senior Citizens met at the Locke Mills Church hall on Thursday with 38 plus two guests present. A delicious dinner was served by the ladies of the church and everyone enjoyed the program by Althea Stevens showing how she spins the fur from her rabbits. She also showed items she had made from the yarn.

The Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War will meet on Monday, March 12 for a regular meeting. JoAnn Crockett and Harriet Estes are on refreshment committee.

Sympathy is extended to Muriel Raymond in the death of her husband Fred Raymond.

PROPERTY TAX PLAN

In the property tax year 1990, for the first time the "Deferred Collection of Homestead Property Taxes," a bill enacted by the 114 Legislature, will be effective.

A resident who is 65 years of age or older and who has a household income of $22,000 or less may apply before April 1. (The income figure was misprinted as $12,000 recently in the media). Your local assessor has the applications.

The assessor will complete applications to the state. If an applicant is eligible, the state will pay the property taxes on their residence and up to 10 acres of land. When the resident no longer lives in the house, and it is sold or leased to heirs, the taxes which have been paid by the state plus six percent interest are due to the state.

Many town assessors in Western Maine have scheduled meetings to explain the program to residents. Those interested are encouraged to call their local town office or the assessor's office for more information and applications.

our cookies or sell chances (am I painting us into another quill corner? ...maybe...) or canvass the neighborhood for the help that is needed. We could weave our responses into a support system that will allow the DARE project to succeed.

John didn't have such a system. He had little support. He was alone, his capacities fried like the egg in the ad that warns, "This is your brain on drugs..." He didn't know hope or love. I'm sure that he didn't survive. I hated what he was doing, especially when I knew that it affected my family... but I never wished him dead.

Our son survived! He is alive and well and working toward success. We're proud of his recovery and oh so pleased that he wants to embrace life and to make a contribution. We know now that he could easily have followed John's lead. We could be smug and say that our love and his trust in it helped him in his choice... but we know that there was probably more luck than choice involved. We're happy that his luck and our's held out...

John swallowed his bottle of death the other day... think about him when you see the "fried egg" ad... we can't help him, but maybe we can save someone else... let's DARE to try.

Love, C.B.

COVERED WAGON—John A. Zinck of Rumford hitched his horse and wagon to a utility pole on Main Street in Bethel last Thursday, completing the first day on the road of his planned 3,200 mile journey from Rumford to Seattle, Wash. Zinck, who planned the trip to raise money for the American Cancer Society and the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, spent the first night of his trip at the Bethel Spa. Relationship problems? Number 4: What would your relation be to your brother's son's sister's mother? Answer at the bottom of the column.

Last Thursday evening I had a nice surprise visitor, Bonnie Learned, a communicant of the Bethel Church of the Nazarene, carrying a fruit basket for me. We had a nice long visit and I thanked all those who had something to do with it. "When you share with others a part of what you have, that which remains multiplies and grows."

At the last meeting of the Mother's Club on Feb. 12, Valentines were exchanged and yours truly received extras again from unsigned "friends of the heart." Thank you, I don't deserve all this, but I'll take it anyway! I love you.

Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Bea Lowell, Karlene Bachelder, Sylvia Wight, Eleanor Davis and Olive Anderson went bowling at the Oxford Lane, Rumford last week and Betsy was high on the triples. Eleanor was high on the singles beating the tie of Betsy and Karlene by two pins. All went to lunch and shopping.

The Newry Mother's Club will meet March 12 at 7:30 at the Municipal Building. There will be an auction during the social hour. Mary Tripp, Olive Anderson and Peg Wight will serve the refreshments.

Quite a few people of Newry went to the Cozy Inn Nursing Home last Wednesday to help celebrate the retirement of Roger Hanscom after 38 years of service to the town. A spray of fresh flowers was presented to Amy, his sister, and Karlene Bachelder's husband gave each one a gift from his "Sticks and Stones" gift shop. The whole town will miss Roger's advice on management of the town.

Alaska needs a foolproof moose repellent to keep the animals away from the railroad tracks. About 20 moose a day die under the wheels of the trains in the winter. So far about 333 have died since October. Usually the moose runs down the tracks away from the train when it is overtaken and loses the chase.

Answer to the relationship problem number 4. She would be your sister-in-law.

CARD OF THANKS

I'd like to thank all of you who have sent cards, letters, phone calls, flowers and all the prayers that have been said for me. Everything has been deeply appreciated. My many thanks to all.

Another week rolled around and the ending of another month today. It should get us closer to spring and warmer weather or at least we sure hope so. Hopefully they are wrong about any snow flurries this morning and it will clear up and be sunny and bright. The snow sure came down in a hurry yesterday afternoon and the wind blew it around for a while. Seems as though with the bigger storms we have had it is enough for this year but one never knows what is in store for them.

Kariann came up on Monday of last week to stay for a few days and Courtney came on Tuesday evening. They make the house come alive when here and I love to have them. Had to get my grandson, Toby to drive me to the doctors on Wednesday and took the girls with me.

Peggy went with Bertha Benoit and Charlotte Cole to Portland where they shopped, ate out and went to the Ice Capades. That is a show I always love to see.

Was surprised on Thursday when Wynona came to get the girls as she had Ida Randall with her. They stayed to lunch as the friend Nonie was to have lunch with was out of the office and she couldn't take her to lunch. After eating and the dishes done, Wynona took Ida to Biddford where she was to visit with her sister for a day or two.

Had hoped to get to Auburn to go to Waterville with Wynona on Friday but was unable to, so she got some things for me. Haven't been able to drive down to get them but hopefully my son and wife will get them for me today. It is not so good when one's legs won't let them do what they want to do. Pain all over but the legs keep me from doing many things that I would do otherwise, pain or not.

Peggy and Russell went to West Paris Grange on Friday night to help with the degrees being worked on some members. Russell was to be steward to help out. They had planned to go dancing on Saturday night but got fooled again as they were afraid it would storm and didn't want to get caught in it as they did Friday night so didn't go. It was a pleasure to not get that storm as predicted in the beginning. We had enough Friday night and Saturday morning. Russell went out and cleared out as soon as he thought it wise as he didn't want to have to clear snow from two storms at the same time. It would make it much harder to clear with the plow blower where it was so wet underneath. Peggy came down to the house and we played cards Saturday night.

Nothing very exciting happening here on Sunday or Monday. We watch the squirrels and birds come to the feeders. Of course, Russell has had a time to keep one particular squirrel from the bird feeder out front of the home. It reminded me of the time he had at Bethel to keep the squirrels from the feeder. They are so sly and crafty that they can figure things out pretty good as to how to get at a feeder to get what they want. They

LOWER MILK PRICES FOLLOWS NATIONAL DOWNWARD TREND

Agriculture Commissioner Bernard W. Shaw announces that recent action will result in lower milk prices for Maine consumers effective March 4.

After a period of 10 months of milk price increases, this reduction follows the national price, which is heading downward. Although there are regional premiums involved, the basis for milk commission pricing is established by the Federal Milk Market Administrator in Washington, D.C.

A strong Maine-based dairy industry is important to all the citizens of Maine and Shaw warns that drastic drops in prices would threaten this important industry and jeopardize the well-being of the hundreds of people involved in this important natural resource based sector.

eat the corn he puts out but if they get a chance at one of the bird feeders, they don't hesitate at all to eat the sunflower seeds which they much prefer to corn. Anyway, if you drive by and see the metal wire up by his window box you will know it is there to keep the squirrels from the bird feeder that is near by. So far it seems to be working so hope it continues.

Went to town to keep an appointment yesterday and didn't go shopping at all as it was too hard to drive anywhere. I don't want to take chances of having an accident if I can help it.

James Whitmore and friend Jenise called on the Raymond Macks recently.

Veno Heikkinen was also a recent caller on the Raymond Macks.

Mary Lovejoy called on Tammy Fairum in Bryant Pond a week ago.

Jennifer Haverinen spent last Wednesday night with the girls at Lovejoys and on Thursday accompanied them to the Ice Capades. What a nice trip for children to take.

One day recently when Russell and Peggy were out for their walk, they spotted a large hedgehog in a tree up near Charles Herrick's home. We thought they were inside for the duration but that one evidently thought it time to appear. Wonder what he thinks with this cold weather we are having now?

Mary said she had seen skunks also and had some gnomes come to her house to feed. Must be they are all looking for spring to arrive shortly. Hope they don't get disappointed, how about you?

What walking I have done lately, is in the house. I do quite a bit of it inside where the cold bothers my lungs so but will be glad when I can get outside and really walk off. Maybe it will help the fibrositis that persists in paining me all the time. I sure hope so.

Take care one and all and have a good week ahead. March is coming in so it does seem as though calmer weather could not be too far behind.

Penny,

Good luck
in California.
We love you.

Laxative Lowers
Cholesterol

Recently there has been much interest in reports which indicated that various natural and processed food products had the ability to lower blood cholesterol levels. Most of the attention has been directed toward foods which contain differing amounts of fiber. Researchers have reported a 10 to 15 percent reduction in blood levels of cholesterol in individuals who ingested psyllium, one of several fiber-based preparations that is used as a laxative. In a study of 26 men at a Veterans Administration Hospital, reduced cholesterol levels returned to previously high levels when psyllium was discontinued.

In a more recent study at the University of Minnesota, psyllium was evaluated in 75 patients with mild to moderately elevated blood cholesterol. The placebo group (modified diets without psyllium) achieved some reduction in cholesterol. The test group (modified diets plus a teaspoonful of psyllium dissolved in water with meals three times a day) achieved an additional 8 percent reduction in LDL cholesterol and a 5 percent reduction in total blood cholesterol. Researchers, who published their findings in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, indicated that, in certain patients, "physicians may wish to consider this form of treatment before trying drug therapy."

Counselors will be working with all students, grade 9-11, throughout March and early April on their academic/career planning and 90-91 course registration. Mr. Hart, Mrs. LaVallee and Mrs. Hannon encourage parents to contact them should any questions or placement concerns arise as their students go through this scheduling process for the next academic year. The National Honor Society Selection Committee will meet in the near future to decide on new inductees for 1990. This year we are fortunate to have 34 10th, 11th and 12th graders eligible for consideration. N.H.S. members are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character and service. Current N.H.S. members are Seniors: Debbie Barker, Marybeth Hannon, Stephanie Percival (President) and Juniors: Nate Buchanan, Kris Delano (Secretary), Meredith Howe and Kristen Powell (Treasurer). The group is planning a Blood Drive at Telstar H.S. in early April. Twelve members of the SAD #44 Guidance Advisory Committee met at Crescent Park Elementary School on Monday, Feb. 5. Agenda items discussed were the Students-At-Risk issue and the district Crisis Intervention Team. Counselors stated that addressing the needs of Students-At-Risk was a district goal for the 89-90 school year. The Oct. 2 Students-At-Risk workshop provided educators, support personnel and the public with a general awareness of the problem and a good foundation on which to begin dealing with this issue. Advisory members agreed many programs were already in place or being piloted this year throughout the district to raise students awareness and self-esteem. These include the CAP, Personal Safety and Quest programs at the elementary level, and, at the high school, substance abuse support groups, self groups, SADD, FACT, Outward Bound, OSLC, STRETCH, Career Week and teen parenting support groups. Advisory members felt, however, that much more needs to be done in terms of early intervention and program development, especially at the elementary level. Members discussed children from divorced families. Counselors believe we have a high percentage of these students in our district. Studies show that children from divorced families are distrustful, have lowered aspirations, trouble with relationships and problems dealing with authority figures. In light of this and other societal issues, members felt the school district needs to look at these problems conceptually, and develop their programs to meet the needs of what's happening now. Counselors hope the district will offer a follow-up to the Oct. 2 workshop where this issue could be further explored. Members felt the public needs to be better informed; although they receive some information about this problem from schools and the media, they are offered little in terms of tangible solutions which they could support. Members said they would like to discuss this topic again in March. Dan Hart, Junior/Senior Counselor at Telstar High School and Becky Hardy of Tri-County Mental Health presented Advisory members with information on the district's Crisis Intervention Team. They explained the team had been established over the past year to aid students in times of stress and trauma. The team, made up of school staff, local clergy and mental health personnel, has established procedures to work with local and state law enforcement officials and emergency rescue personnel at the time of a life threatening event, illness or death. The team's goal is to assist students and local public safety agencies in allaying fear and gossip, by substituting facts and help. Advisory members were pleased to see

Andover fund raising for church repairs continues

There has been much public interest in the fund raising drive for roof repair at the First Congregational Church in Andover. With a goal of $10,000, the drive, headed by Jane Rich, has raised over $1,500 at the end of the first week.
Built in 1831, the First Congregational Church has been an inherent part of the town's history and the site of many family activities.
During a routine maintenance check, a roof leak was discovered, as well as the necessity for other general building repairs. Donations may be sent to the First Congregational Roof Fund, Andover 04216.

such procedures had been enacted in this district and could see where a team such as this would be a valuable and necessary service.
The next Advisory meeting will be March 5, 7-8:30 p.m. at Telstar High School. Agenda items will include further discussion of Students-At-Risk, and the Teens and Theater improvisational theater group soon to be started in this district.

SKATEBOARDING last Saturday at the Andover elementary school, Christian Hutchins takes to the air. Watching in the background is George Casavant, waiting his turn. Both Hutchins and Casavant will be serving as youth members of the newly reorganized Andover recreation committee.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

Feb. 24th we had quite a snowstorm in the morning. Our son Jim, had a friend who works at U of M. Orono, Corey Anderson who had driven down to Jim's the 23rd. Where it was snowing and the friend had a 4-wheel drive, they drove up from Freeport to pick up Heather. Jim had to leave the 28th for New York for a week's seminar and from there L.L. Bean is sending him to another week's seminar in Texas.

Frankie brought Theresa back for the night Saturday and as Frankie left about 5:30 a.m. to meet Alan Bradford of Dixfield in Bethel, I took Theresa down to the Red Top about 9:30 to meet her mother to go back to Gardner, Mass. Frankie and Alan went to an all day budget meeting in Brunswick.

The morning of the 27th we had a temperature reading of -10 and the MacDougalls had a -18 reading.

Kristin and James William Gibson went to South Paris the 28th to help celebrate Kristin's mother's birthday.

During winter school vacation Linda, Seth, and Jon Howe have been enjoying the skiing at Mt. Abram. Jon Howe, the boys' grandmother, has also been able to go quite a lot.

Wednesday, the 21st, Linda, Seth, and Jon Howe went to Mexico and visited Leslie Fowler and son, Max, who were visiting their aunt, Bob Duchette. The Howes are from Waterville. While in Mexico they saw Linda's mother, Sylvia Fontaine. On the way home they stopped in South Rumford for the first birthday party of Peter MacGregor.

On Friday, the 23rd the Howe family visited the newest family member of the Davis family. They went to Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Davis' to see Bailey Elizabeth Davis. She was a week old and also has a two year old sister, Chea Davis.

Gerry Shimamura, Justin and Joe Shimamura, Debbie Seames, Dawn, Ryan and Rusty Seames and Charles Mason went to Rumford bowling with others from the Nazarene Church.

Justin Shimamura spent all of vacation visiting his grandparents, Joe and Gerry Shimamura and also Burt and Mabel Herrick in Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hannon and Amy went to Portsmouth, N.H. to visit Mr. and Mrs. Harley Raitt from Thursday to Saturday of vacation.

Jennifer Mason and Misty Hutchins went to Camp Berea in Turner Friday night for the young people hosted by the Bethel Gospel Center of the Christian & Missionary Alliance.

The 23rd Ernest and Alberta Angevine went to an open house of Mt. Road R.V. in Sabattus.

The 25th Ernest and Alberta Angevine went to Wilson's Mills to see the deer. There were about 25 to 30 gathered where they feed them. While there the Angevines' called on Margaret Baker.

The 24th Brent Douglass, son of Dick and Grace Douglass of our road and Shelley Rice, daughter of Burnie and Wendy Rice, were united in marriage at the Congregational Church in Bethel.

Brian Douglass, brother of the groom was the best man and Ricky Angevine was an usher. Celia Gorman, great-grandmother of the bride was seated at the head table.

Also attending from this road were Gina, Brandon and Bronson Douglass and Jack and Patricia Greig.

The reception was held at Locke Mills Legion Hall, following which the couple went on a cruise.

The pre-nuptial supper was held the night before at Dick and Grace Douglass'.

Wednesday of vacation Gina Douglass and sons went to Canton to visit her sisters Karen and Kathy and children. Victor, Judy, Sarah, Jessica, and Vicky Coolidge left the 15th for Florida and returned the 24th. On the way down they went to Sarasota, Fla. and stayed awhile with Victor's sister, Phyllis Barnhill, and family. The 17th went to Kissimmee, Fla. From there they took in Disney World, Busch Gardens and Sea World. They also went to the Space Center where the shuttle was ready for take-off. It was supposed to take off before the Coolidges left Florida but, as we know, had a quite a few delays. How wonderful to take a trip like that with the children!

God is Nigh - Day is done, gone the sun from the lake, from the hills, from the sky, safely rest, all is well. God is nigh.

Does this sentence sound familiar to any of you? "You can't miss it." That's what is always said when you inquire for route directions, just before you get hopelessly lost.

It's easy to find. Just follow the directions cousin Tom gave you on how to get to his house, out in the country hills.

When you leave, you are full of confidence. The directions are so clear and complete. Before long, however, you are asking, "which turn did he say to take?" You are facing several at this point.

At long last after driving up and down every road within 10 miles of his place, you arrive, and you are eager to tell him what you think. But he comes out beaming and so glad to see you that your anger at getting lost fades away. You only say, "Guess I got a little mixed up at the road intersection." He didn't realize that, when HE used the road he took road number 31 from the north, but YOU came from the south. So you headed exactly the wrong way.

Have you ever noticed that after your host-to-be gives you three hundred words of detailed directions he always ends up by saying, "You can't miss it?"

Of course the trouble is that Tom knows the road to his house so well that he hasn't really seen it for years. So when he says, "Take the second turn on the right; there's an old red house on the corner" you look for it. A new road has been cut through, so his road is now the third. As for the red house, that has been torn down.

A woman I used to know always told her friends how to find the turn that led to her house; "It's the last turn on the right. You can't miss it." How in blazes do you know it's the last turn until you've driven past it by a half mile and blundered on to a dead end?

Here is a classic; how often have you heard, "You come to this big intersection. Turn right." How easy it sounds. But six streets come together at this point. Which turn is it? No time for a reasoned choice of decision for there is a large trailer-truck nudging from behind. So you quickly choose. Needless to say it's

MOBILE JOB SERVICE OFFICE IN NORWAY ON WEDNESDAYS

The Department of Labor has agreed to a mobile job service office at the Norway Armory every Wednesday, from 9:30 to 3 p.m., according to Sen. Donald Twitchell.

"Although this decision was not my top preference, it is a compromise with which I can live," Twitchell said. "Given the current condition of the state budget, I had to accept a reduction in services. I am glad, though, that I was able to make sure that some assistance will still be available in Norway."

Twitchell began calling for continuation of the Norway Job Service Office immediately following the December announcement that the office would be closed due to shortfalls in the Department of Labor's budget.

He followed his call for keeping the office in Norway open by sponsoring legislation requiring a three-month decision period where finances and other options could be assessed. Those actions have resulted in the compromise one-day-a-week mobile office.

"I don't know that they would have provided any job service in Norway at all if I hadn't intervened," said Twitchell. "At a time like this, in an area like Oxford County, we cannot afford to do without employment assistance. I am very glad that the Department of Labor was able to identify a way to continue to provide some help."

The wrong one; besides it is a one way... and guess which way you are headed. Well, to get back to Tom. You made it there regardless and how many times have YOU said, "You just can't miss it?"

Ruth Hanson entertained the Tuesday Club at her home on the 27th. Lenora Holt and son David, were in Portland on Thursday for Lenora to see his surgeon.

My niece, Evelyn and a friend took me out for lunch on Thursday. Katie Tannin is recovering nicely from knee surgery at St. Joseph's Memorial Hospital.

Ann, David and Mary Holt were at the Bok Farm on Sunday.

Albany bridge repairs set for summer of 1990

The Maine Department of Transportation is planning to replace the deck of the Maine Road Bridge in Albany Township. Bids on the project will be opened Wednesday, Feb. 28 in Augusta.

The project area begins about 55 feet south of the bridge, which carries the Hunts Corner Road over Swett Brook, and extends north for just over 200 feet. Plans call for removal of the existing deck, a concrete slab atop steel beams, and construction of a new concrete deck. The existing abutments will be modified to accommodate the new deck.

Work also will include repairs to the streambank where erosion threatens to undermine the Hunts Corner Road about 75 feet upstream from the bridge.

During construction, the contractor will be allowed to completely close the bridge for up to 30 days while the old deck is removed and the new slab is installed. Traffic will be detoured via Routes 118 and 35. After the slab is in place, alternating one-way traffic will be maintained while the new wearing surface and other work is completed.

Due to environmental concerns, all in-stream work will be limited to low water periods in July and August.

A timetable for the start of work will be determined after the contract has been awarded, but MDOT specifications call for completion of the project this September.

Raising baitfish for fun and profit

Anyone interested in the burgeoning business of raising freshwater baitfish in Maine can now learn more about it in a new publication from the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

"Baitfish for Fun and Profit in Maine" is the first publication available with information on baitfish production and marketing in the northeastern United States, according to Peter Bourque, director of the department's Fisheries and Hatcheries Division.

The 86-page booklet is available for $3 from the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, Public Information and Education Division, 284 State Street, Station 41, Augusta 04333.

Bourque says the local growing and marketing of bait fish is being encouraged as a means to stem the illegal trade in imported live fish for bait from other states. Imported bait fish present a risk of introduction of diseases and parasites that might be harmful to native Maine fish species.

"Baitfish for Fun and Profit in Maine" contains chapters on subjects such as the laws and licensing of baitfish growers and dealers, biological requirements for culture, holding and transport of live fish, descriptions of common baitfish species, water quality and testing procedures, construction of various facilities and equipment, disease and parasite prevention, marketing and other related topics.

It also provides lists of publications, tips for small business management and record keeping, sources of stocks, supplies and equipment and even a glossary of terms commonly used in the business.

and then the activities. They were really fun even though my class didn't get near winning. I was in the relay race. There were four in each class and you had to get a sock, t-shirt, shorts and hat on correctly and then run to the other person while he put the clothes on and ran to the other person, etc.

Well, it was a pretty ok week (besides the dog). And I hope you and I all have a wonderful week ahead of us.

A week in the life of HILLARY HARRISON

How do you do? I'm kind of good and pretty bad. The bad part is that my dog died last Thursday. It was really bad, but I guess life must go on.

The good news is that my cousin (Kim) came up from Louisiana, plus the prom was last Friday night. It was ok, but I guess I was just not in the great mood for dancing.

Also last Friday was our rescheduled winter carnival activities. The sixth grade watched a movie in the morning and I don't know what the seventh and eighth graders did while we watched the movie but after the movie we had lunch

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Two films were shown at the annual film festival of the Bethel Historical Society held Thursday evening in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House.

The first detailed the world of May Sartor, well-known York, Maine, writer. The second dealt with the life of a Maine hunter, trapper and logger and his view of the world after years of living an isolated existence in the Maine woods. Prior to the program portion of the meeting, president Marvin Quivings thanked the Museum Committee and all the other volunteers who made the Society's 18th annual Heritage Day such a success.

He also announced that the next meeting would be held on April 5 and feature a presentation on diaries and local history by Society Director Stanley R. Howe.

The "Acquisitions of the Month" were two books relating to Maine history, Bourne's History of Wells and Kennebunk and Brunswick, Maine: 250 Years A Town. These were gifts from an anonymous donor.

The president announced that SAD #44 and the historical society are sponsoring a League's Night on March 15, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House.

The evening closed with special refreshments announced by Patsy Post, commemorating St. David's Day, St. Patrick's Day and the sugaring season. The Society's July meeting will be held at West Bethel and feature the annual picnic. The program will feature a presentation on the history of Old Route 2 by Jane Hosterman and Connie Vautour. Anyone having information, memories and/or photographs relating to this section of West Bethel is encouraged to call Mrs. Hosterman at 836-2382, Mrs. Vautour 836-2736 or the Society office at 824-2908.

Also of interest are artifacts relating to that road and the people who have lived there through the years.

Ten years ago: The 8th annual Sunday River Langlauf Cross Country Citizens Race sponsored by Sunday River Ski Club was held at the Sunday River Ski Touring Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chase of Locke Mills celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Leon Gorman, President of L.L. Bean of Freeport, completed a winter course of the Outward Bound program.

Deaths: Leroy D. Morgan.

Twenty years ago: A credit union was founded in Locke Mills for persons working in the towns of Bethel, Greenwood and Woodstock.

The first grade at Ethel Bissbee School visited several places of business in town as part of their social studies course on community helpers.

1990 moose permit forms available

The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife is now accepting applications for 1990 moose hunting permits.

Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Bill Vail says 1,000 permits will be issued for the Sept. 24-29 hunt—900 to Maine residents, 100 to nonresident hunters.

The application deadline is April 30. Maine residents may obtain application blanks from license agents or from any office of the Fish and Wildlife Department.

Nonresident hunters who applied for last year's moose permit drawing, or who held a Maine 1989 big game license, will automatically receive a 1990 moose application from the Fish and Wildlife Department by the end of March.

Application blanks will also be inserted in the February newsletter of the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine and in the March issue of the Maine Sportsman.

Resident and nonresident applications may also be requested by writing to: Moose Application, Maine Fish and Wildlife Dept., Station 41, Augusta 04333.

Nonrefundable application fees are $5 for residents of Maine, $10 for nonresidents. Only one application may be submitted. Applicants successful in the drawing must also acquire moose hunting permits—$25 for residents, $200 for nonresidents.

To be in the moose drawing permit in June mailed applications must be postmarked no later than Monday, April 30. Applications hand delivered to the department's Augusta office must be received before 5 p.m. April 30.

Maine's annual moose hunt is limited to northern, western, and eastern portions of the state.

Under the moose permit system, two hunters may hunt together on the same permit; the pair may take one moose.

In 1989, 68,171 Maine residents and 16,653 nonresidents applied for moose permits—both figures record highs since the limited hunt began in 1980. The 1,400 permit holders harvested 922 moose.

Consumed in the blaze were the sawmill and former grist mill building, a dry shed full of finished products and other buildings connected with the main mill. The rear of the office and a loaded freight car were also lost. The Bethel, Bryant Pond, and Norway fire departments confined the damage to the mill property although nearby houses were also threatened.

Record freshwater fish

One of Maine's most common fish species, yellow perch, and one of its rarest, Sunapee trout, are now represented on the list of Maine's state record freshwater fish.

The Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife maintains the state record list and says there's good reason neither fish was previously on the list: No one who caught a big one ever submitted it as a possible state record. Now that has happened, and the department will recognize the two fish as state records until someone can prove they've caught a bigger one.

The department is also recognizing a Northern pike caught last winter as a new state record.

The yellow perch was caught last August by 14-year-old Chad Mostats of Portland at Worley Pond in East Peru. It weighed 1 pound, 10 ounces and was 14 3/4 inches long. Young Mostats was trolling a bass lure, a Creek Chub, when the big perch struck.

The record Sunapee trout was caught last June at Lower South Branch Pond in Piscataquis County by Wayne Dillon of Brownville, who was trolling with spoons and nightcrawlers. The fish weighed four pounds, 10 ounces and was 23 inches long. It was four inches long when it was stocked in the spring 1980, according to Fishery Research Biologist Fred Kitchin, who confirmed the identification of Dillon's catch.

Richard Dodge of Union broke the year-old record for Northern pike by over

CAREER DAY FOR AREA HIGH SCHOOL FRESHMEN MARCH 14

Dan Hart, Telstar High School's Guidance Director, announced that on March 14, the Northern Oxford School Counsellors and the Bethel Rotary Club are jointly sponsoring a Career Awareness Day for area freshmen.

Hart is also the director of the Bethel Rotary Vocational Service Committee. The conference will be held at Telstar High School from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., with 50-70 guest presenters participating.

Career cluster topics will be agriculture, public service, hospitality and recreation, marine science, transportation, business and office, natural resources and environment, manufacturing, personal services, health, consumer education and home economics, communication and media, marketing and distribution, construction, fine arts and humanities.

The students will be at Telstar, Mountain Valley, Dirigo and Buckfield high schools, and career presenters will be from a 50-mile radius of Bethel.

Area school counselors will contact other Rotary Clubs for potential presenters after Rotary members either participate as presenters or recruit other speakers.

Each presenter has been asked to relate his or her occupational information in a visual hands-on way if at all possible. Each freshman will have the opportunity to learn about four occupations. There will be four general sessions, and each presenter may expect a maximum of 12 students per session. Presenters will offer a 20 minute presentation followed by five to 10 minutes of discussion.

Parents of participating students are welcome to contact their respective high school guidance offices before March 14 regarding the program: Telstar 824-2118, Buckfield 335-2151, Dirigo 562-4251, Mt. Valley 354-4547.

Nordic skiers increasing in numbers this season

Maine nordic ski centers are reporting increases of 10 to 100 percent in cross country ski activity this season with most areas reporting increases in the 20 to 25 percent range. The abundant snowfall and mild weather is the primary reason for the increase.

At the Upcountry Ski Touring Center in Aroostook County five feet of snow is on the ground and the center expects to operate well into April.

Steve Wight, owner of the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center believes this is the best snow year since 1978.

The Naticus Ski Center in Augusta had its earliest opening ever on Dec. 3.

The two largest increases were reported at areas dependent on coastal snowstorms. The Samoset in Rockport has seen an increase of 50 percent and the Harris Farm in Biddeford, which logged only 300 skiers last season, is well over the 2,000 mark this year.

The weather has not been the only factor in the increase. The Carter Farm in Oxford and Troll Valley in Farmington have discovered the expanded services now available at nordic centers, including daily trail grooming, instruction, specialty programs, fitness facilities, saunas, and restaurants.

"It's just a more enjoyable activity than going it alone out your back door," says area operator David Carter.

The most encouraging sign for the industry is what appears to be an increased awareness of nordic skiing as a family activity.

Both Ski Nordic at Saddleback and the Samoset Resort are seeing more parents bringing their children. The Christmas Tree Farm in Skowhegan reports that juniors in that community are introducing their parents to the sport. The Carabasset Valley Touring Center is teaching more women to cross country ski. Mt. Abram's Nordic trails are used by mothers who had previously been sitting in the lodge.

Sally Sawyer, nordic director at the Bethel Inn Cross Country Ski Center says increased advertising and promotion for the sport is paying off. The USA's Ski to Believe it Campaign has been a big success.

The Maine Nordic Ski Council established a ski reporting network this season with nordic on radio, television, and the State of Maine's 800 tourist information phone.

Sponsorship of the program was provided by a local Portland automobile dealer, Maine Mail Motors.

Maine's unique wilderness is the reason for the upswing at the Birchies in Rockwood where skiers have an opportunity to traverse Moosehead Lake to the majestic Mt. Kineo. The State Bureau of Parks and Recreation also reports an increase in winter usage for a back country nordic experience. Borealis North in Dover Foxcroft, operators of a yurt-to-yurt back country ski trail system have seen their business nearly double.

Retail sales of nordic equipment have also shown gains. Northern Lights in Farmington has observed increased family business. Maine Sport in Camden had the highest pre-Christmas sales ever. Fort Sports in Portland says sales are up 25 percent in entry level equipment and the Ski Rack at Sugarloaf and Livermore Falls has almost run out of cross country stock.

Barry McPherson, assistant manager for sales and merchandising at L.L. Bean, reports an increased interest in high performance, junior and back country equipment.

The Maine Nordic Ski Council is a trade association comprised of 24 area operators and retailers. There are 50 nordic facilities, including state parks, Acadia National Park and the White Mtn. National Forest in Maine.

For a listing of facilities write the Maine Publicity Bureau, 97 Windthrop Street, Hallowell 04347.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Our February vacation was extended by two storm days and the majority really enjoyed the time off. Even students who said they didn't do anything over vacation could think of some activities when pressed!

However, we are now back to work and all classes are digging in. The kindergarten classes are celebrating the last of winter by making penguins for an art project. They have worked with all the letters up through R and are beginning the S by making them out of pipe cleaners.

They continue to work with their 100's collections. They get together with a partner and group their 100's into tens. The first graders are sounding and blending words with the j sound and the spellings of j, dge, ge, gl and gy. They are also beginning the short o sound. They are reading Fables by Aesop.

Math games for the week are: Crazy Mixed-up Numbers, Dice Game, and Lift the Bowl. They are using their Happy Jack puppet to help them learn to count backwards.

Grade two has established March as Dinosaur Month. The unit was introduced with a filmstrip and by reading many dinosaur books on dinosaurs. There will be dinosaur activities going on all month.

The famous Dr. Seuss celebrates a March birthday and his books will be read all month also. The class has been reviewing the short vowels for skill lessons.

The third graders are continuing with their unit on transportation. They are learning all about au and aw pronunciations. They are making career snowmen. More on this next week.

The fourth graders are studying the Southeast region of the United States. They also are choosing a state to research and write a report on. This is always an exciting project. They are finishing up their science unit on soil and water.

My fifth graders seem to really enjoy writing. They have just finished their first compositions and have done a great job. They continue to write their pen pal letters and several are writing extra letters to the service people who answered our Christmas mail.

Others are writing extra letters in answer to students from other states who are participating in the Great Mail Race. These students hope to get answers from every state in the union. My class is making lots of other kids happy. Our next writing project is to write a story—not a paragraph, but a long story.

The sixth graders are reviewing all the different math algorithms. They are preparing for a project on Canada and are currently studying the lowland provinces and learning a lot about Ontario. The last trivia question from the sixth graders concerned the meaning of the word indolent. It means people. The indolite chose that word thinking they were the only people on earth.

The class is observing the antics of their newest member, Fred, the field mouse. Jason Breck found him and brought him in. Fred finds his cage, food and attention quite enjoyable.

The sixth graders in the district have been preparing for the district spelling bee. Kevin Hutchins is representing the Agnes Gray School this coming Thursday. Tanya Rosenberg is the runner-up. Congratulations Kevin and Tanya!

Pledges for the St. Jude Math-a-thon are due in this week. Students have completed their math booklets and should be collecting their pledges. The booklets do not have to be returned to school. We hope to send in the money to St. Jude's Children's Hospital next week.

Parents, be on the lookout for hot lunch envelopes. We are planning to send these home on Fridays. We are hoping these will help you and us in organizing the hot lunch money.

It would be helpful if you could send in the money for the entire week in Mondays. The menu for the week is usually in the newspaper and can also be found on the back of our weekly calendar. This is not mandatory. You do not have to send everything in on Mondays, nor do you have to use the envelopes. However, you may find them helpful. Let us know what you think.

The fifth grade wants March to come in "like a lion" in hopes it will go out "like a lamb." We are planning our annual Boston trip for March 30.

JOB START LOANS

The Finance Authority of Maine recently lowered the interest rate of Job Start loans to 8 percent, the lowest interest rate in several years. Job Start loans are used to start, expand, or strengthen small businesses in Androscoggin and Oxford Counties, according to Joan Churchill of Community Concepts.

The Job Start program was created by the 111th Legislature as a revolving fund available to small entrepreneurs who did not have access to conventional sources of credit. Since 1984 the program has made 29 loans in the two counties using $200,500 in loan funds.

According to Churchill with interest rates at the lowest in several years the remaining $125,000 in loan funds will be loaned to small businesses.

Decisions on loan applications are made at the local level by a volunteer Advisory Board headed by Giselle M. Kern of Auburn. The other members are Jean Gorey of Lewiston, Barbara Long of South Paris, Jon Kendrick of Oxford and Zeke Treask of South Paris.

Information and loan applications are available by calling Community Concepts, 743-7716.

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

Lorraine and John Mills were among those attending the Billy Graham movie "Caught" at the Movie Town Hall Sunday evening. It was really an excellent film about a young man caught up in the drug culture in the Netherlands.

Lee Mills has been miserable with pain in his leg and had to go to the hospital for treatment last week. He will be going to Lewiston for more tests.

I was pleased to hear from my former pastor's wife, Marilyn VanHorn, last week. She reports they are really enjoying the 40-50° weather they have in Kentucky and although the boys miss the snow, she and Lyle definitely do not. She is working full-time at the hospital in the nursery (pediatric ward) and Lyle is very busy with his studies. Mark misses Maine and his friends the most which is understandable since he's the oldest and had been with his school chums the longest. The other big news is they traded their big van for a small station wagon. I never thought I'd hear that. Lyle thought a van was the only vehicle worth marketing.

Town meeting for Greenwood will be held Saturday, March 10 at 10 a.m. at the Town Hall. The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will be putting on a dinner at noon.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Fuller last week were Tom, Lisa and Chancie Hazelton of San Clemente, Calif.; Susan Hazelton and Joel Gelfand of West Covina, Calif.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary met Tuesday evening at the Fire Station to discuss the up-coming town meeting dinner. Those present were Floesie Bernier, Denise Swan, Sally Melville, Mary Stone, Charlotte Kimball and Barbara Dunham.

Diane and David Thurston of Albany visited Lorraine and John Mills Friday evening.

Shannon Fuller was home for a week from her studies in Portland.

Val and Caroline Greene, Sudbury, Mass., and some of their family spent the weekend at their home on Howe Hill.

Lenten services for the combined Locke Mills Union Church and Rumford Point Congregational Church have been announced and will include a service on Wednesday, March 7, at Rumford Point at 7 p.m. March 11 is membership Sunday at the regular morning service in Locke Mills. All desiring to join the church are cordially invited. Please call Rev. Gen Haywood if interested. The Wednesday service on March 14 will be held at the Locke Mills Church at 7 p.m.

So. Woodstock

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

This is no news, Saturday morning and snowing hard outside. It would be inside if I opened the door. Four inches so far on top of what we have makes that much more. I did get out the back door and made a road to the bird feeders. I had a white bellstaring out there who came home from the south too early. Mourning doves have been added to my group of birds. Crows have been around all winter. How do they do it and live? I don't know, do you?

Everyone is better on our hill. Amanda is recuperating from her tonsil operation and can enjoy ice cream and pops. Anyone who has gone through that operation knows what I mean.

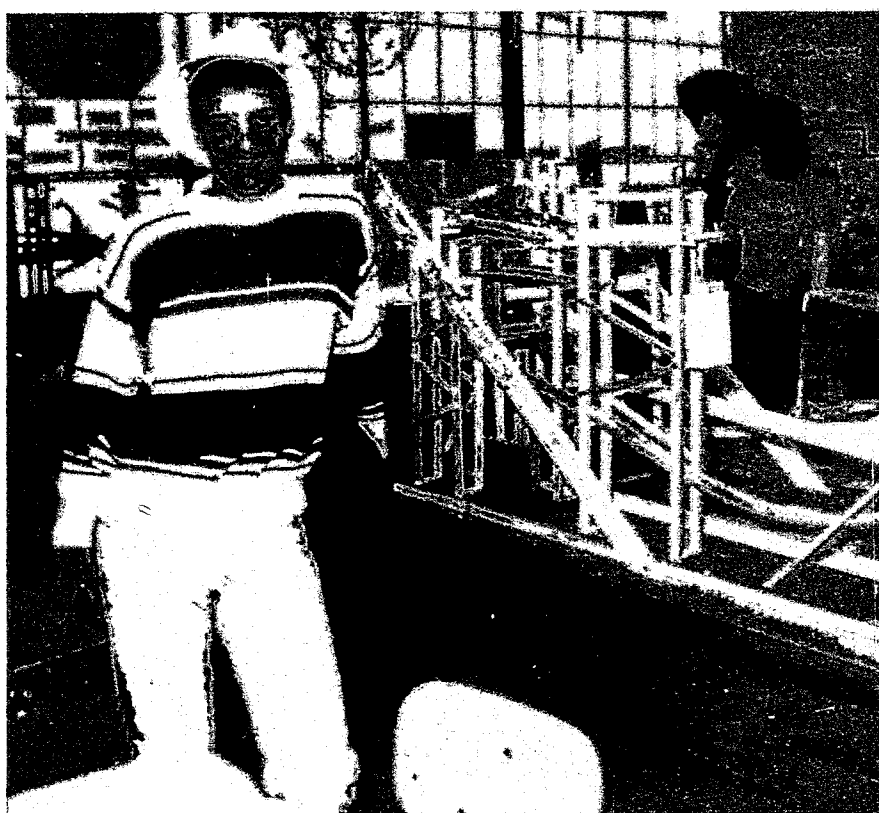

Mrs. Jane Niro and children returned to Massachusetts Friday after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Clements were in Belfast Monday and Tuesday this week calling on her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Thompson. At Swanville they visited his mother Margaret Clements and at Searsport they called on Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Brunier and two children, Nicholas and Elijah.

School vacation is about over, so back to school again.

This Wednesday Marta Clements took her youth group in the First Universalist Church, 10 children with helpers, to the Ice Capades in Lewiston.

The Willing Workers will be holding their next meeting March 7 at Ledgeview LIGHTS UP AND OUT—Mike Clark-Pelletier with his "match igniter and putter-outer," was selected by Mike's classmates as the number one Rube in their collection of Rube Goldberg devices. Rube Goldberg was a cartoonist who specialized in sketching extremely complicated machines capable of performing simple chores. The Telstar students, who had been studying energy and its transformation, designed and built a variety of Rubes intended to demonstrate a loss of stored energy.

NOTES FROM

Evans Notch District

White Mountain National Forest

In the White Mountain National Forest Management Plan the importance of maintaining openings in the forest cover as a means of providing diversity in wildlife habitats is recognized.

Approximately 80 percent of our native woodland wildlife species use various kinds of openings to satisfy at least some of their breeding, food and/or cover requirements at some point in their life cycles.

The types of openings we maintain include apple orchards, grass openings, and brush openings. These areas need maintenance every three to five years to keep this desired vegetative type.

There are a variety of methods of accomplishing this, with tools or power tools, mechanically with tractor mounted brush hogs, chemically with approved herbicides, and with prescribed fire.

The Evans Notch Ranger District has been using hand tools, power tools, brush hogs plus prescribed burning for the past two years as a means of maintaining openings.

Prescribed burning has shown to be an efficient and cost effective means of maintaining openings. In the spring of 1988 five openings totaling 18 acres were treated with fire with very good results.

This year we anticipate 60 acres in 15 different openings could be maintained with fire.

The openings range in size from one to seven acres and will be burned in accordance with approved Burning Plans.

Each Plan specifies the ranges of air temperatures, humidity, and wind speed and direction that are acceptable for each area.

Sufficient personnel and equipment are on site to ensure that the fire stays within the desired area.

In addition, some areas will be available for cooperative training exercises with State and local forest fire control agencies.

Anyone interested in receiving more information about prescribed burning or who want to comment on the prescribed burning program should contact the District Ranger, Evans Notch Ranger

LURC public hearing

on lakes management

April 27 in Rangeley

The Maine Land Use Regulation Commission will hold a public hearing to give interested parties the opportunity to comment on proposed changes to the Commission's Comprehensive Land Use Plan, Land Use Districts and Standards, and appropriate Land Use Guidance Maps regarding the development and conservation of lakes in the Commission's jurisdiction.

These proposed amendments are intended to (1) further the recommendations of the Commission's Lakes Action Program by developing a comprehensive lakes management program, (2) make the Commission's regulations more consistent with the State's minimum shoreline zoning guidelines, and (3) make other changes felt necessary to accomplish a reasonable level of protection to the lake resources of the unorganized areas.

The hearing will be held on Friday, April 27, at 6:30 p.m. at the Rangeley Inn. All interested persons are invited to attend the hearing and offer testimony which would have a bearing on the proposed amendments.

The general public is not required to file Petitions to Intervene in order to testify. Members of the general public may simply attend the hearing and give oral testimony.

The length of individual testimony may be limited, if necessary, to accommodate all who wish to testify, so please plan to be brief and concise.

Persons interested in seeking formal intervenor status in this matter should file a Petition to Intervene pursuant to applicable provisions of the Maine Administrative Procedures Act and Chapter 5 of the Commission's Rules. Petitions to Intervene must be filed by 5 p.m., March 13.

The hearing record will remain open for a period of 15 days (until Monday, May 14) to allow interested persons to file written statements with the Commission, and for an additional seven days (until Monday, May 21) to allow interested persons to file written statements in rebuttal of statements filed during the prior 15 day period.

Persons with disabilities planning to attend the hearing are requested to inform the Commission in advance so arrangements can be made for services they may require.

Copies of the proposed amendments are available free upon request. Call (207) 288-2631 or instate toll-free 1-800-452-8711, or write Land Use Regulation Commission, Department of Conservation, State House Station 22, Augusta, 04333. Questions regarding the proposed changes should be directed to Fred Todd at the above address or phone number.

The Mahosuc Arts Council programming committee met recently to begin planning for the 1990-'91 season.

Thanks to generous contributions from community members and local businesses, as well as a grant from the Betterment Fund, the Council is looking ahead to expanded programming in the Bethel area schools and communities.

Performances scheduled for the spring of 1990 begin on March 8 with "Poetry Alive," a group who combine theatrical techniques with memorization to perform poetry as a way of stimulating student writing.

Two assembly programs and workshops are scheduled for the Telstar School and the Middle School students.

On May 3, the Atlantic Clarion Steel Band will be in Bethel to give an assembly presentation at Telstar during the day and to perform as part of the Gould Academy Performing Arts Series that evening.

The evening performance is open to the public and tickets may be purchased at the door.

On Thursday, May 12, Living Literature will perform "As the Wind Rocks the Wagon," stories of the Oregon Trail.

That evening they will play for a community Contra Dance in the Andover School gymnasium. Tickets to the dance will go on sale prior to the performance.

When the 1989-90 season draws to a close this summer, the Mahosuc Arts Council will have helped to sponsor 14 performing artists in the SAD #4 schools and communities. These artists will have participated in seven community performances and presented the schools with

JACKSON-SILVER POST 68

Members of the Jackson-Silver Post 68 of Locke Mills gathered at the American Legion Hall on the Gore Road for a 7 p.m. meeting, Thursday, March 1.

Because of the few in attendance a brief informal meeting was held.

At the beginning of the meeting some discussion was made of the coming State Convention in Bangor, later this year.

Members of the nominating committee submitted the following report of the nomination of officers for the ensuing year, as follows: Commander, Ray Tripp; Edley Strickland; Vice Commander, Charles Mason; Second Vice Commander, Terry Hathaway; Adjutant, Brian Strickland; Finance Officer, Richard Cross; Chaplain, Rodney Hanscom; Service Officer, Warren Smith; Sgt. at Arms, Frank York; Historian (Open), Americanism Officer, Roland Lord.

The Post Charter was draped in honor of departed comrade Fred Raymond.

For a number of years the Legion has made the hall available to a troop of Boy Scouts to use during a winter ski vacation for its members, as a place to sleep and eat.

This year when they left and remitted payment for the use of the facilities they presented the Post with a nice plaque with the following inscription: Boy Scout Troop 89, Medfield, Mass., would like to express their appreciation for all the years of allowing us to use the Locke Mills Legion Hall on our annual ski trip. Generosity is the truest Scouting spirit.

Some of the Officers of the Post had a bad experience in purchasing some needed fixtures for the hall. Those who made the contact by phone were pressured into making a quick decision to purchase on very scanty information of the product, the cost of which came to a considerable amount.

We are therefore warning our members and friends not to conduct business in this manner and end up paying more for the merchandise than buying directly from a store.

Construction Expo of Maine, April 11, 12

The 10th anniversary of Construction Expo of Maine will be April 11 and 12, at the Augusta Civic Center, Augusta.

Sponsored by the Maine State Chapter of the National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC), Expo attracts over 100 exhibitors displaying construction equipment, materials, supplies and services.

The Associated General Contractors of Maine will hold its second annual Safety Fair in conjunction with the Expo, featuring seminars, demonstrations and exhibits on safety techniques.

Construction Expo funds the Chapter's construction scholarship program—the largest of its kind in the state—for high school students pursuing one, two or four-year construction-related fields of study.

Show hours are 1 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, April 11, and noon to 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 12. Both indoor and outdoor booths are still available.

NAWIC is an international association of over 8,000 women employed in different fields of construction. The Maine State Chapter has 60 members, while the newly chartered Eastern Maine Chapter has 30 members.

For more information about the Expo, call 822-0047 or write Construction Expo of Maine, RFD 1, Box 190, Vassalboro, ME 04989. For more information about AGC's Safety Fair, contact AGC of Maine, P.O. Box N, Augusta, 04330, 822-4741.

Motorized access to Flat Mountain Pond

The Forest Service will expand recreation opportunities on the White Mountain National Forest by providing walking impaired people limited motorized access to Flat Mountain Pond. The purpose is to provide a backcountry experience to persons who are unable to use the hiking trails currently enjoyed by thousands of able-bodied persons each year.

Forest Supervisor Mike Hathaway said his reasons for opening the Guinea Pond-Flat Mountain Pond Trail route for motorized use by disabled people. "We feel that citizens with physical disabilities should have a chance to experience the adventure offered by a backcountry outing. This is consistent with our effort to provide a variety of recreational opportunities for the disabled. We have studied several locations around the National Forest, but the Guinea Pond-Flat Mountain Pond route provides the best combination of access, distance, and setting to make this an outstanding experience."

The seven-mile long trail begins at the Sandwich Notch Road and follows the course of an old railroad bed and logging road to Flat Mountain Pond. The route is currently closed to all terrain vehicles and four-wheel drives. The National Forest has 1300 miles of hiking trail. This is the only trail which has been identified for use by the walking impaired.

Flat Mountain Pond lies within the Sandwich Range Wilderness, a Congressionally designated wilderness created in 1984. The Wilderness boundary was located to allow for the possibility of trail access to the pond during the planning for establishment of the area. Motorized vehicles are not allowed in the Wilderness. The proposed trail would end short of the pond and disabled persons would be required to use wheel-chairs or other devices to get to the pond. The proposal for the trail was made by the suggestion of the Governor's Commission for the Handicapped.

DISCOUNT PHONE SERVICE

Do you know someone who doesn't have a telephone?
Or someone who is eligible for a discount of $7 per month on his or her monthly phone bill, but isn't getting the discount?

If you do, Phone Me. That's the name of the new community program to bring phone service to all of Maine, regardless of income.

Phone Me is a first-in-the-nation statewide campaign to make universal telephone service a reality.

For $10 an eligible low income customer can get new phone service installed and then pay just $7 to $10 per month for unlimited local calling," said Thomas Kane, Phone Me's project director.

Another "Phone Me" goal will be to offer Lifeline discount rates to all low income households who already have telephone service, Kane added.

He said that nearly 3,000 low income subscribers had already signed up for the Lifeline discount of $7 per month during the campaign's trail runs in Portland and York County.

"If you want some application blanks—which are very simple to fill out—just Phone Me, at 1-800-640-8800 or in the Portland area at 775-0106," Kane said.

The campaign is administered by the Portland West Neighborhood Planning Council at 155 Brackett Street in Portland, 04102.

Low income and elderly persons are eligible for the discounts if they receive AFDC, SSI, Medicaid, Food Stamps or Fuel Assistance.

BEST SERVICE
BEFORE and AFTER THE SALE

The Extension Line...

U. Maine Cooperative Extension Service

You have just brought home a newborn baby, and as an environmentally conscious consumer you have decided that you will only use cloth, reusable diapers. You look in the yellow pages to find a diaper service—only to find that there is none serving the Oxford County region. No problem you think, you'll order some of the new biodegradable disposable diapers now being carried by some supermarkets, or available via mail order.

They degrade in the landfill within a few years. Right? Well not quite.

While the verdict is still out on biodegradable diapers, manufacturers of disposables and environmentalists say claims made by the manufacturers of biodegradables are unsubstantiated because crowded landfills lack the water and oxygen necessary for degradation. Also, biodegradables consume as much paper and plastic as major disposable brands. According to one study, 1,000,000 tons of wood pulp from trees and 75,000 metric tons of plastic (a petroleum based non-renewable resource product) are used every year to make disposable diapers in the United States alone.

As convenient as they may seem, disposables are becoming an increasingly serious problem. Every year 10 billion are thrown away, taking an estimated 500 years to decompose. This mountain of disposables also adds an estimated 2-8 million tons of human waste a year to landfills.

Proponents of cloth diapers often note that fecal matter which travels to landfills via disposables carry viruses such as polio, hepatitis, and meningitis that could threaten the health and safety of sanitation workers, and leach into ground water.

Can we afford such convenience? What option does an environmentally concerned parent have? The truth is disposables are garbage unless they're cloth.

Consider the economics of disposables versus cloth. Estimated costs to the consumer of disposables is 22 cents each, biodegradables 26-30 cents each, cloth diapers 13 cents each when washed at home and 15 cents when laundered at a service.

Furthermore, there is a hidden cost to disposables—it costs taxpayers 300 million dollars each year to dispose of disposables.

While companies that produce disposables argue that paper keeps a baby drier, cloth advocates counter that the plastic backing prevents the skin from getting air. Cotton is a natural product which can breathe and circulate air.

Cloth diaper products are being re-evaluated. There are now many different cloth diaper alternatives. Some contain the tight fitting leg enclosures similar to a disposable, and have quick and easy velcro tabs.

Finally, diaper services are starting to pop up all over the place and there is now one, "The Bottomline" out of Conway, N.H., which serves Southwestern Oxford County.

Local businesses donate to Channel 10 television

WCBB, Channel 10, provides the Bethel region with quality public television programming. Many individuals in the Bethel area support WCBB with donations and we all benefit from the selection of programs, both for children and adults that are available on a regular basis.

Some business people in Bethel have gone one step further this year and donated merchandise and gift certificates to support the Channel 10 auction.

The auction, which is a major fundraising effort, is in its 10th year and is held each spring on the air. Money raised by the auction is used to purchase the programs that we view. It is through efforts such as this that public television is able to provide a high level of programming without the interruption of commercials.

This year, during the 10 days of the auction, April 18-27, viewers will recognize many donors from the Bethel area. Generous donations from Sunday
River Ski Resort, Sunday River Ski Touring Center and Green and McGurn will be highlighted on the "Big Ten" board each night.

Other businesses that provided donations include The Holiday House, The Sudbury Inn, L'Auberge, The Rusty
Motor Inn, The Chapman Inn, The Wood and Glass Gallery, Bonnama Pottery,
Lowell's Saw Shop, Bailey's Saw Shop,

The Bethel Savings Bank, Telemark Inn and Llama Trek, Mother's, Brooks
Brothers, and many others.

We all owe an extra note of thanks to these business people, and should take pride in our community which has taken an active interest in the efforts of our public television station.

Other businesses that are interested in donating to the Channel 10 auction may contact the local auction coordinator,
Linda Gamble at 824-3090.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

It is said that when a person misses three Sundays in a row, he or she will return to church only if invited. When we miss that first Sunday, we feel like we really wish we had attended. When we miss that second Sunday we feel like we missed something but not as much. And if we do not return by the third Sunday we feel that we are no longer connected with the activities of the church.

If you have fallen victim to the 3-Sunday Principle (and even if you have not), we invite you to return to worship. Our churches are only part of your possible choices. Just as there are different ways to keep our bodies physically fit, there are also different ways to keep ourselves spiritually fit. The important thing is that we exercise. Look around, ask questions, visit some different churches and then find a spiritual home that nourishes your soul and your life with God and each other. We look forward to meeting you as you seek to

WILLING WORKERS MEET AT LEDGEVIEW NURSING HOME
The Willing Workers met at Ledgeview Nursing Home on Feb. 7, with eight members present. Quite a bit of business was taken care of. Membership dues of $2 per person are now being collected and can be paid at any time. Carol Corriveau is our membership chairperson.

Because we are a community organization whose purpose is to work together for the good of the community, we must be thinking about some ways to earn money.

This month, we are asking members to collect cans and bottles — sort of an independent bottle drive — cash them in before our next meeting, and bring the profits to Ledgeview on March 7, our next meeting. Do plan to attend on the 7th and bring a friend.

EARTH DAY POSTER CONTEST OPEN TO STUDENTS K-12

Maine's schoolchildren can make a pitch for clean air—both in the state and across the nation—by entering a poster contest sponsored by the Maine Department of Environmental Protection.

The contest, open to students in grades K-12, celebrates the theme "Earth Day 1990: Care About Clean Air." Letters have been sent out to school principals asking for their students' participation.

Entries will be judged and prizes awarded in two categories: Students in grades K-6, and students in grades 7-12. First, second, and third prize winners in each category will receive U.S. savings bonds donated by the American Lung Association of Maine.

In addition, Gov. John McKernan will visit the first prize winners' schools and personally present those prizes.

The winning posters in the DEP contest will be forwarded to Washington, D.C., to compete in a national poster competition sponsored by the State and Territorial Air Pollution Program Administrators (STAPPA) and the Association of Local Air Pollution Control Officials (ALAPCO)—the national associations representing state and local air pollution control agencies across the country.

Foreign student group seeking host families
Imagine being able to absorb the culture of a foreign country for a whole year without ever having to leave home. That is exactly what the ASSE Student Exchange Program offers local families who want to host a teenager from abroad.

The teenagers are students from Europe, Australia and all points in between. They are 15 to 18-year olds who want to become part of an American household, which means they pitch in on everything from chores to family discussions.

They are also enthusiastic about sharing the culture and customs of their homeland. Most ASSE kids are fluent in English, and can help teach their own language to their American family.

We have many students for whom we are currently seeking families. The exchange program lasts for an academic year. Interested persons should contact ASSE's local representative, Sandra Grondin at 897-5501 or call 1-800-333-3802.

Jane Rich leaves post as Andover selectman

By BARBARA ADAMS

At a short Feb. 27 meeting of the Andover Board of Selectmen, Board Chairman Jane Rich accepted the good wishes of the board as she vacated the position.

Rich will run for the office of Register of Deeds for Oxford County (Eastern Division) against incumbent Gayle Sue Fulkman.

The selectmen presented a plant to Rich as a parting gift, along with thanks and appreciation for her contribution to the town.

The selectmen went on record to commend Treasurer Alex LeGault for his excellent bookkeeping, noting LeGault's name had been omitted in the letter commending him in the town report signed by state auditor Bryant Brown.

The selectmen plan to tour MCI on March 27.

At the suggestion of Selectman William Maselli, the board allocated a sum of money to sponsor a writing contest at the Andover School sometime in the future. The tentative plans are to have students in Grades 4, 5, and 6 write on "What Andover Means to Me" or a similar subject. More details will be announced later.

EARTH DAY 1990 CONTEST

Senator Bill Cohen, R-Maine, reminded Maine students today that they have two weeks left in which to submit entries in the Earth Day 1990 contest. He is sponsoring to highlight concern and appreciation for the environment.

In the contest, open to students in grades K-8, children are asked to submit poetry, essays or artwork reflecting the theme "Celebrating the Environment." The submission deadline has been extended by one week to Friday, March 9.

Cohen will announce the winners at a ceremony in Bangor on Saturday, April 21, the day before Earth Day 1990.

"As we approach the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, this is a particularly meaningful time to reflect on the state of the environment here in Maine and throughout the world," Cohen said. "We have made many strides in our efforts to clean up and protect this beautiful earth on which we live, but there is still much more to be done."

"I am hoping that this contest will serve as a means for the younger generation, who have so much at stake in a clean world, to think about how to preserve and protect the environment they will inherit one day and to present for all to see, through drawings and words, what it means to them."

Entries will be judged in three groups according to the age of the entrants—K-grade 2, grades 3-5 and grades 6-8. First, second, third prizes and an honorable mention will be given in three categories within each of these groups—individual, class and school.

The winning entries will be displayed in the U.S. Capitol Complex in Washington, D.C., or printed in the Congressional Record. All entrants will receive a certificate of appreciation.

Entries accompanied by a registration form should be sent to Cohen's Bangor office, 17-104 of the Bangor Federal Building, P.O. Box 1384, Bangor 04401.

Forms and contest rules were sent last month to schools throughout the state.

Additional forms and information are available through Cohen's Bangor office, 955-0417.

SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE

The DeMolay and Pine Tree Youth Foundation has announced plans to award $300 scholarships to graduating Maine high school seniors who are continuing their education next fall.

Robert C. Hazelton, North Yarmouth, Chairman of the Foundations Scholarship Committee, said that any graduating Maine high school senior is entitled to submit an application to the Foundation to be considered for one of these scholarship awards. All awards are made without regard to race, religious background, or organizational affiliation; however, he continued, it is required that an awardee be registered at an institution of higher education before receiving their scholarship.

The DeMolay and Pine Tree Youth Foundation was organized Sept. 19, 1968 to promote and encourage educational, recreational, and spiritual values among Maine youth and has used income from investments to fund various programs each year, including its annual scholarship awards.

Application forms may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Robert C. Hazelton, DeMolay and Pine Tree Youth Foundation, 30 Memorial Highway, North Yarmouth 04093. The deadline for the return of completed applications is April 1. Awards will be made prior to graduation.

Heartfelt sympathy is extended to member, Muriel Raymond, on the sudden death of her husband, Fred.

Further plans were made for the 6:30 p.m. supper on March 15 which is the 71st birthday of the American Legion. The menu will feature ham with mashed potatoes and several other vegetables and birthday cake for dessert.

Leah Desjardis is in charge of all meals and refreshments which are served and could use member donations of potatoes, carrots or cabbage for this supper. A good way to get them for her is to bring them to the Legion Hall on any Friday evening, which is game night, and she or other members are present and could accept and store these donations.

Only a few days later, March 22, at 7:30 p.m., Oxford County Council will be holding its monthly meeting with us. It will be candidates night and election of officers. Refreshments will be served following the meeting. This is a good opportunity for members who are unable to attend meetings out of town to come to a County Council meeting. All Post and Unit members are members of County Council.

Two Junior members, Brandy Russo and Koral Smith, will be part of a group of Telstar High School students which will be traveling to Spain after the end of the school year. It was voted to contribute $25 to each of them toward their spending money.

April 8, the Unit will be hosting the Girl's State Tea from 2 to 4 p.m. This year's delegates, who will soon be traveling to the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C., will be special guests along with their parents. Past delegates and auxiliary are urged to attend.

March 15 will soon be here so we hope that members are making plans to attend this 6-8 supper to honor the founding of the American Legion. A program will follow the meeting.

ALCOHOL LAWS FOR GROCERS

Techniques of Alcohol Management: an Employee Training Program co-sponsored by the Maine Grocers Association and the SAD #4 Adult & Community Education program will be held on Tuesday, March 6 with a choice of afternoon or evening sessions at Telstar High School, in Bethel, from 2:30-5 p.m. or 6:30-9 p.m.

T.A.M. (Techniques of Alcohol Management) is the approved course for retail grocers in the state of Maine, according to John Joyce of the Maine Grocers Association. This program has met all the specifications of the Server Education Advisory Committee. Recent changes in the Maine liquor laws that affect retail grocers have made employee training because of concerns regarding liability in the case of violation. The licensee is, of course, liable but the courts are now directed by the legislature to fine or levy civil forfeitures against the licensee and his agents or employees, with the degree of employee liability dependent on the degree of training that the employee has received.

At the request of local businesses, Maine Grocers Association has been invited by SAD #4 Adult and Community Education to present T.A.M. at Telstar High School. To enroll in either the afternoon or evening session, please call the Adult Education office, 824-2700.
